or two, since it has become apparent hat a deadlock in the senatorial race is on that the race would go on for several lays, the legislators being unable to break he deadlock. This idea evidently prevailed strongly in the camp of the governor's tiends, for they went to work with a will to bring the very strongest influences to bear in such a contingency.

In nearly every county of the state mass meetings or primaries will be held Saturday to select delegates to nominate subreme court judges. These meetings, in most instances, will be very small, and by s little quiet work it would be easy ough to fill up the meeting with the friends of a candidate. This done, it would an easy step to pass resolutions indorsing his candidacy.

These meetings will be uniformly small on Saturday because of the lack of local interest in the races, and in nearly every instance they will be attended only by the people of the town in which they will be held. This makes it easy to work the plan which the governor's friends suggest.

These snap movements, quietly worked, have cut a pretty big figure in many campaigns in the past, and it was planned that it should do so in this.

Many telegrams were received in Atlanta by members of the legislature and others yesterday telling of this movement. It was stated that circular letters had been received by the friends of Governor Atkinson in the counties of the state urging quiet work in the direction of getting out all the governor's friends and without previous notice adopt resolutions indorsing governor for the senate. great political coup was planned in his way and it was the fond hope of the Sovernor's friends to present to the legislaure after Saturday a startling array of esolutions of indorsements from many parts of the state. This was intended to be quiet move and was intended only for e close inside supporters of the governor, but as the telegrams and letters received yesterday indicate, it leaked out in a most inexpected way. What effect this move will have can only be guessed. It was stated in the messages that the governor's political friends had been set to work and were prepared to work the mass meetings for all they are worth Saturday. Such a move, taking the people by surprise, might

He used a pick to dig it from the ground, and it is supposed the instru-ment came in contact with the can. The explosion was heard all over town and caused great excitement, Conn's remains were scattered for hundred of yards around, and one foot was the largest piece found. In he buggy Conn had occupied were four gallons of nitro and at the report of the explosion the horses ran away, but, strange to say, the jolfing did not explode it. Conn was a young man and sold glycerine to the

Thanked Them for Support and Withdrew from the Race.

CAUCUS MEETS AT 3 THIS AFTERNOON

It Is Believed That the Race Is Now Between Captain Howell and Mr. Clay-A Hard Day's Work by the Candidates Yesterday.

The senatorial race has narrowed down to three candidates.

The first withdrawal occurred last night when Hon, Hal T. Lewis came down, He called a meeting of his supporters, thanked them earnestly for the loyal help they have given him, politely but firmly declined their plea that he continue in the race and announced that he would not contest further

Mr. Lewis's withdrawal fell like a thunder clap in the crowded lobby of the Kimball. It was made public at 9:30 o'clock, when the members of the house and senate who had attended the final meeting of the candidate from Greene appeared upon the

The surprise was heightened because of the deep impression that was prevalent all vesterday that the chances of Mr. Lewis were perhaps brighter than they had ever een. Scarcely anyone outside of his imnediate support anticipated the move.

When the news became known it started anew the energetic canvassing of the canldates. They went to work with fresh zeal to win over, if possible, the voters who were thrown upon the field without a first choice by the withdrawal of Mr. There were twenty-two representatives and senators at Mr. Lewis's meeting, and he was the first choice of that number. These votes are to be divided among the three candidates remaining in the field today and it is impossible to decide what effect the withdrawal of Mr. Lewis will have upon the strength of the other candi-

It was the universal impression among the politicians last night, however, that the retirement of Mr. Lewis makes it certain that today's caucus will settle the enatorial race. Before the news of his retirement was announced it was the general belief that a deadlock was certain to ensue, and that it might be several days before any result was reached.

Candidates Did Not Expect It. The candidates put in a hard day's work yesterday without counting on the possibility of Mr. Lewis's coming out of the race, and they were thrown into a sort of demoralization when the fact was announced. They quickly rallied, however, and went to work to do what they could to win the support which had just left the retiring candidate. Mr. Lewis's withdrawal was characteristic of the man. It was done against the earnest protest of his warm supporters. They declared their desire to vote for him and work for him to the end, confident that he had a splendid show of success. But Mr. Lewis felt that he was unwilling to continue further in the contest under the prevailing conditions and stated to his friends that he was no longer an aspiran for the place. Mr. Lewis withdrew under the happies auspices, and with an unbroken and loyal support back of him. He entered the race at the request of these friends and many others. No thought of offering for the place had ever occurred to him until meetings in his home county and in other parts of his district virtually placed him in the race. Even then he was reluctant to enter. He had several times declined to ru for congress when success was certain and had refused to enter the race for justice of the supreme court at a time when the most flattering offers of support were held out to him from all parts of the state. His Friends Put Him In. But his friends drew him into the sena torial race. They felt that a hot contest would be made for the place and that Mr. Lewis, by reason of high character, superb equipment, and the fact that he has made no political enemies, was the man above all others to unite the forces of the other candidates and receive the honor. Upon the idea that a bitter fight for the office might be avoided. Mr. Lewis consented to offer for the place. He came to Atlanta and opened headquarters, and it has been many times said of him that he has not lost a single friend by his candidacy. On the other hand, he has gained many. He has antagonized nobody, but has conducted a lofty and elevated style of compaign which has won him the admiradreds of the best pullticians in the state agreed that his charces were good—quits it because he is unwilling to further contest in a race in which to is the lowest man, no matter how brist his prospects might race his candidacy would only intensify the inwilling to do this. Taking that view of he matter he determined yesterday afternoon to leave the field to the other candidates.

Consults with His Friends.

He talked the matter over with his warm riends and supporters, Judge John C. Hart, Congressman W. M. Howard, Captain Wylie Burnett and others. It was agreed to all a meeting of his friends last night. At call a meeting of his Triends last hight. At that meeting there were present:

Senators—Brinson, Culver, Kilpatrick, B.
F. Walker, Witcher.
Representatives — Arnold, Armstrong, Black, Burwell, Craig, Callum, Calloway Faust, Kendrick, McMichael, McCranie.
Reid, Swift, Smith (Hancock), Thomason, Thomas of Clarke, Jenkins.

Mr. Lawie To His Friends

Mr. Lewis To His Friends. In his quiet, dignified way Mr. Lewis stated the decision he had reached, and gave his reasons for it. He most earnestly hanked those who had supported him, and pledged them ihs eternal gratitude. Many them insisted that he continue in the race declared his chances to be brighter and etter than ever, and pledged him their best support to the last ditch. He was deeply touched by the offers of continued hely from his friends, but stated that he could not consent to remain longer in the fight.

At the conclusion of the meeting a letter. addressed to the general assembly, was drawn up by his three friends, Messrs. Hart, Howard and Burnett This was given out after the meeting, and is as Yesterday's Hard Work. Work and rumors were all there was in the shape of developments in the senatorial fight until Mr. Lewis came down last night. The candidates kept up a pretty rying about and h quota of caucuses and meetings. They may have worked miracles behind the closed doors of their caucus rooms, but the day was prolific of no surface results up to nightfall.

The air was laden with rumors of deals trades, withdrawals and all that sort of election talk throughout the day, but no actual development came. The candidates were all confident, as matter of course. It was the general opinon during the day that the race would be between Captain Howell and Mr. Clay. with Mr. Lewis as a strong possibility The senators, representatives and others take no stock in dark horse talk, and there seems to be not the ghost of a chance for ne to come in. Suppressed Campaign Document Is Sharp and Salty.

NO WONDER BUTLER HELD IT

Almost Every Utterance a Criticism of His Management,

Strangest Letter of Acceptance Ever Written-Wrote Seven Columns Before His Anger Cooled and Then He Was Not Good Humored.

Thomas E. Watson's letter, accepting the rice presidential nomination of the populist party, has at last been given to the

It was written on October 14th last, to senator Marion Butler, chairman of the otification committee and manager of the populist campaign. It was suppressed by Senator Butler during the campaign for reasons that are obvious from a perusal of its contents. The document is nearly seven column long and contains some pungent criticisms against Senator Butler and his management. Naturally the senator declined to give it publicity when almost every utterance was a criticism of his policy and his plans. Mr. Watson will publish his letter in full n his official organ, The People's Party Paper, which comes out today. The Constitution reproduces here extracts which give the substance of the letter:

Having closed the doors of the mints to silver, having sustained Mr. Cleveland in his refusal to allow the seigniorage coined, having conditioned his issue of bonds in violation of law, having acquiesced in his contraction policy of destroying the greenbacks, having helped to feed the trusts by the passage of the Wilson-German-Jones tariff bill, the democratic party, realizing that it had lost the respect, the confidence and the patience of the people, determined to anticipate the triumph of populism by a public confession of political guilt, an earnest assertion of change of heart, a devout acceptance of populist principles and a modern demand that the people's party should vacate its quarters and surrender its political pos

Democratic Independence.

"A very staggering piece of political im pudence was this. It was not a minority of the democratic party which murdered silver in 1893. It was a majority that did it -a majority in the house, a majority in the senate. And the men who committed the deed cannot now promise more solemnly to undo their work than they promised in 1892 to do it. * * *

"During the dreary years of 1892, '93, '94 and '95, when republicans and democrats alike were falling over each other in the effort to be first at Wall street's feet, and lowest in the dust of political self-abase ment to the trusts, the national banks, the ailroads, the bondholders and the gold speculators, the people's party was the one champion of the people. It stood fearessly against the hungry hordes of class legislation. It proclaimed constantly its undying antagonism to Wall street and its people's rights and called for patriots to rise and defend the republic. Since the bugle-note of Rhoderick woke the highlands, and the flery cross sped from mounain to glen and from glen to hamlet, there has been no such spontaneous outburst of oopular enthusiasm as marked the growth f the people's party. One creed, one purpose, one hope, one inspiration moved us all. and had we sternly put temptation aside and nominated to straight populist ticket at St. Louis, one man from the west and one from the south, we would have swept this land from sea to sea. . . .

The Populist Convention. "Between the broad-minded populists who were clamoring for unconditional surrender to democracy, and the middle of the roaders, who wanted populism to be true to its mission, quite a wrangle er sued at St. Louis. "You were present at St. Louis, senator. and you therefore know that after Senator Allen made his public statement that the western populists were going to support the democratic ticket, whether it was indorsed by the populists or not, the middle of the road faction met in caucus and determined to put forth a straight populist ticket. Twenty-one states were represente in this caucus. It selected Hon. S. F. Norton, of Illinois, and Hon. Frank Burkitt, of Mississippi, as the middle of the road nominees for president and vice president, respectfully. Had these gentlemen been nominated by the middle of the road men of the convention, I do no hesitate to say that they would have re ceived my hearty support as against the Chicago ticket of the democratic party. "But I was ignorant of the action of the caucus, and did not learn the facts till after the convention adjourned. I was monize all the differences which existed it the convention, and consented upon that express condition. Thereupon the names of Messrs. Norton and Burkitt were not presented, and the nomination of the Bryan ard Watson ticket then followed, it being understood that if the populists accepted the democratic nominee, the democrats would accept the nominee of the populists. What the People Wanted. There is no doubt that among the voter of the democratic party, south and west there was an earnest desire that the pop-lists should be met half way. The people wished for union among the advocates of silver, and they felt that union could not be accomplished by demanding an abject surrender at the hands of the populists. "The leaders of the democratic party, however, having secured populist indorsement of Mr. Bryan by direct vote in the rmined to secure it for Mr convention, determined to secure it for Mr. Sewall also, and for this purpose they have resorted to the policy of fusion.

"Instead of meeting the populists half way, the democratic managers have demanded that we furnish all the patriotism which the occasion requires; and they no which the occasion requires; and they not only refuse to make any concessions at all, but they treat with public insult the party whose votes are necessary to democtatic success. In other words, populism is allow-ed to furnish all the campaign principles, all the self-sacrifice and patriotism, and the two million votes which the democrats need, but they are not to be allowed to furnish a candidate for either place on the ticket.

"In view of this unpatriotic conduct, so selfish that it defeats its own ambition, it is to be regretted that the populists at their national convention did not nominate straight populist ticket. My judgment was against the fusion movement at the time, and subsequent events have confirmed me n that opinion.

"By listening to the overtures of democratc managers, our party has been torn into actions, our leaders deceived and ensnared dangered, if not lost. The labor of many years is swept away and the hopes of ands of good people are gone with

We must not explain to the people wherein he is an objectionable candidate, and we must not mention the fact that he is a national banker, a bondholder, a railroad magnate, a corporation millionaire, an enemy to organized laber, a beneficiary of trusts, a seeker after subsidies for the Merchant Marine and a protectionist of the McKinley "These things must be kept from the people, I am told? Why so? Haven't the voters a right to know for whom they are voting?

"Our national convention expressly rejected Sewall, and populist voters should not be compelled to vote, through fusion deals, for a man their convention refused to

"Both Kansas and Colorado are populist states, and yet the populist nominees are not to receive a single electoral vote in either state. The democratic ticket, Bryan and Sewall, will receive them all. In Kansas the people have been soothed by the assurance that the Sewall electors would vote for Watson, provided Watson got more votes elsewhere than Sewall got. "When in Kansas recently I warned our people of this snare. I told them that lewall would receive all those vote much to get them. You have since sent me a letter written by Chairman Breiden thal, in which the tacit admission is mad that Sewall is to receive all the electoral votes of Kansas, if the present deal stands Populists Disfranchised. "Thus the populists of Kansas and Colorado have been disfranchised. Worse than that—they have been delivered to a fusion where none of their votes count for the and thus violate their principles.

"In North Carolina, where fusion has been arranged with the republicans on the state and county tickets, and with demo-crats on the national ticket, Mr. Sewall gets a majority of the electors. "North Carolina is supposed to be a populist state, upon that idea she was al-lowed ninety-five votes in our national convention. The fact that in North Care

The steamer Julia, which arrived at Havana yesterday from Neuvitas, reports no communication with the city of Puerto Principe since the 27th. Many bridges have been blown up culverts burned and about seven kilometers of railway tracks torn up. Great anxiety prevails in Nuevitas regarding the fate of Puerto Principe. The steamer brought letters detailing the attack on Guaimaro. It appears General Calixto, with a large rebel force and two pieces of artillery, attacked the place on October 17th. The next day he captured the trenches and destroyed ten forts, surrounding the town. The garrison, 150 soldiers, surrendered, but were ordered released, except Quartermaster Mola, who, being a Cuban, attended the wounded. They were then sent to Puerto Principe under an escort. The officers were parolled. Major Martinez, in command of the detachment, was wounded in the arm and died at the hospital as a result of amoutation.

Announces Whom He Will Appoint Inspectors of Coal Oil.
Nashville, Tenn., November ii.—(Special.)
Governor-elect Taylor settled all questions as to two of the offices of his gift tonight by announcing that he intended to appoint Sam B. Williamson coal inspector at Nashville, and Williamson coal inspector at Nashville, and William Caswell coal off inspector at Knoxville. Mr. Williamson is secretary of the democratic state committee and a close friends of the governor's. The office here is now worth about $12,000 a year and that at Knoxville probably half as much. The perquisites may be reduced by the legislature, however, which will consider fee reform. William Caswell is a member of the state committee.

SKELETON FOUND IN THE WOODS

Waco People Recall the Mysterious

Disappearance of a Stranger.

Editor Constitution: A few days ago, while some parties were engaged in a hunt, they were startled at the discovery of the skeleton of a man, which they found in a clump of bushes near a little swamp at the east end of what is known as the "wet cut," on the Southern railroad, two miles west of this place. A skull, the leg and arm bones, a few of the ribs, together with a pocket knife, a bunch of copper keys, a nickel, some buttons, a few shreds of clothing, a truss and a brown again hat were found. It and a brown crush hat, were found. It was readily seen from the decayed condi-tion of the remains that the man had been dead for some time, perhaps a year or more. Fire in the woods, not later than the early spring of this year, had charred the nds of some of the leg bones and burnt away the greater part of the clothing. The mall scraps left, however, were sufficient show that the clothing was of good quality, both the under and outer garments; and this fact of itself at once dispelled the

Three keys, two of which are copper, held ogether by a plain steel ring, and having he appearance of much using, with a small knife, were found in a pile as if the pocket had burnt or rotted away from them. The third key is of cast iron and is an ordinary door key. A piece of pocke was found, which contained a nickel. Two pearl collar buttons and a pair of link sleeve buttons were found, the latter being of a fine quality. The metal is of gold, set with a horn-shaped device, made probably of gutta pertha, while the other finished with a pearl button. The damaged these so that they fell to pieces with the handling. A pair of cum holders were also found and a couple of shirt studs, the latter of different make but both of gold. The two upper front teeth were gold filled between. His teeth, with the exception of one jaw tooth, were al ntact when found, which would indicate good health and an age not exceeding mid-But it is remembered that about a year

In the course of time Mc-Donald came and joined Timmerlake at the farm on a Saturday morning, where he re-mained until Sunday afternoon, when he came up town ostensibly to mail some let ters. After depositing his letters in the postoffice, he walked away and has not been seen here since. After dark Timmerlake came up on a search for his lost friend, and, after inquiry, returned to the farm to wait till morning. With the rising of the sun Monday morning came Tim erlake, who was joined in a daily search by our people for a week or more for the missing McDonald, but without results Finally the search was abandoned and Tim-merlake, canceling the trade for the land, himself departed for Quincy, Mass. Two or three months later, a letter was re-ceived from Mrs. McDonald by Mr. A. J. Finally the search was abandoned and Tim felton, requesting him to ship McDonald' effects left here by Timmerlake, via Savan nah and Ocean steamship line, which Mr Helton did. Now, the finding of the skele ton of the dead man in the woods has revived an earnest inquiry after the missing McDonald. Is the skeleton his? Did fimmerlake decoy McDonald away into the south to slay him? Why did not McDonale himself order the shipment of his effects? Did his wife conspire with Timmerlake in the destruction of her husband? Is Mc

It was about eleven o'clock, just before the fast mail of the Southern road was about to pull out for Washington. A negro walked deliber-ately into the mail car where the clerk was distributing his mail, and before he was detected had grabbed the pouch and valise and jumped out the side door. The negro was finally overtaken and arrested. The mail pouch, full of valuable letters and papers, was recovered as well as the valise. The thief was placed in a patrol wagon and was soon reclining behind the bars at the station house.

PUTNAM AGAINST AN ELECTION. Speaker Jenkins's County Opposed to

Unnecessary Agitation. Eatenton, Ga., November 11 .- (Special.)-The democrats of Putnam county assembled in mass meeting this morning at the courthouse for the purpose of selecting delegates to the convention in Atlanta on December 18th for the nomination of judges of the supreme court.

The meeting was called to order by Captain John S. Reid, Colonel R. B. Nisbet was elected chairman and W. F. Jenkins, Jr., secretary. The following delegates were elected to attend the convention: Judge W. F. Jenkins, Colonel W. B. Wingfield, Z. J. Edmondson, Colonel H. A. Jenkins and Judge J. S. Turner.

Governor Atkinson's Candidacy. The following communication was sent The Constitution by one of the stronge and ablest democrats of middle Georgia with the request that it be used:

"Editor Constitution—Two years ago, when Governor Atkinson ran for governor, he ran very far behind his party's usua he ran very far behind his party's usual majority on account of the savage manner in which he attacked his opponent for the nomination, General Evans. This year, though largely aided by the colored contingent, he ran behind the other state officers on the ticket with him from 18,000 to 20,000 votes. Perhaps the old feeling of opposition which he had excited in 1894 by his abuse of General Evans had not disappeared. Other reasons, however, we think operated more seriously against him in the contest of 1896. The principal one of these reasons was the manner in which he distributed public places within his control. Many faithful and good officers all over the state were displaced by him simply because they were not his advocates in the contest for the nomination in 1894. It cannot be said with truth that the great falling not be said with truth that the great falling off in he late election was due to any want of effort on his part or that of the demotive committee. We may, there-conclude that Governor Atkinson is not a favorite of the people of Geor-gia—not the man whom the people would gia—not the man whom the people would put in the high position of United States whom the risk and expense of special election should be incurred. "Another reason which presents another

"Another reason which presents itself at once why Governor Atkinson should not be elected to the senate is that he has so recently been chosen governor for two years longer by the voters of the state. The office of governor is the one he desired and the one he was chosen to fill for two years. He ought not therefore, having been so deliberately selected to fill the office of chief executive, throw it down, but continue to discharge its duties. When we consider the fact that he has been chosen governor the second time without opposition, all the leading men in the state gracefully yielding any claim to this office in his behalf, we may well say that the eagerness of Governor Atkinson to become United States senator, exhibits such an amount of greediness for high public position as is distasteful, if not disgusting to the voters of the state. If, however, not regarding the claims of others, he is determined to run for the office of United States senator, he ought, in a spirit of fairness and justice, to resign the office of governor and place himself on a ground of equality with his opponents and not continue to bring all the patronage and powers of the gubernatorial office to aid him in getting the place of United States senator. This is so manifestly true that we wonder how any honorable man can act otherwise. The course which the governor is now pursuing will, if sanctioned by the legislature, result in great harm to the democratic party. It will produce a harvest of bad feelings which will show its effects in future elections. Men who take an active part in polities, who spend their time and money for the benefit of the party, with honors and distinctions must perish. "Another, and the usual objection made to Governor Atkinson's candidacy for the senate is that his election for governor. His friends say, however, that this is not a good objection, because the election for governor will have a special election for pudges will draw out a very small proportion of the voters of the state, and will not express anything like a decided conviction of public opinion. The interest of the voters it w elected to the senate is that he has so ecently been chosen governor for two years onger by the voters of the state. The office

Hart County Against an Election. Editor Constitution: The democrats of this section are unalterably opposed to another state election. They supported Governor Atkinson in good faith. His resignation would impose a heavy tax on the people to pay the expenses of another election, and it would be highly detrimental if not disastrons to the democratical if not disastrons to the democratic election, and it would be highly detrimental if not disastrous to the democratic party in Georgia. We think here that our members in the legislature would do well to consult the wishes of their constituents before they decide to indict on the people another election for governor.
Give us a rest. We have had elections

THE ELECTION OF J. P'S.

The Proposed Amendments to the Pres ent Law and What They Mean. Editor Constitution—I am a candidate for justice of the peace, to fill the term beginning at the expiration of the term of the present justice of the peace of the 1026th district, Georgia militia, Fulton county, Georgia, and, therefore, am interested to that extent in any legislation county, Georgia, and, therefore, am interested to that extent in any legislation proposed or that may be adopted by the present session of the general assembly. The public generally are more interested throughout the state than I can possibly be. There is legislation now pending in reference to the time of holding this election. A bill proposed by Mr. Mozeley, of Cobb, sesks to change the time of holding the next election from the first Saturday in January, 1877, to the fourth Baturday in January, 1877, to the fourth Baturday in January, 1876, (the present year). Another is to change the time from the first Saturday in January to the time for the election of state and county officers, this bill to go into effect in 1900.

That there should be a change of time for the holding of these elections in the future I make no question. All elections are to be held under the general registration law of the state now in operation until changed. This law provides that only qualified voters who are registered for the year in which the election is held are entitled to vote in any election. If the election the second day of January, 1877, there will not be, and cannot be, a list of qualified voters under the registration act for the year 1877. Therefore, the necessity of the bill of Mr. Mozeley, which brings on the election in the year 1896 the proposes to move up the election one week, and thereby authorize all registered voters in the election, thus avoiding any complications or questions of doubtful legality that might possibly arise should the election be held as now provided for. Upon the same line is the bill introduced by Mr. Felder, of Fulton, which is to go into affect in 1900, with the additional commendatory provision that the election shall unite with the other state and county elections and be now provided for. Upon the same line is the bill introduced by Mr. Felder, of Fulton, which is to go into affect in 1900, with the additional commendatory provision that the election shall unite with the other state and county elections, and be held at the same time that the other officers of the state are elected.

I fully agree with the sentiment which prevails throughout the state that our people are burdened with too many elections, and that so far as practicable they should be held on one day. Believing in this sentiment, I think Mr. Mozeley made a mistake in not proposing to have the election of justice of the peace throughout the state on the same day and at the same places when the voters will be called upon to elect judges for the supreme court under the amendment of the constitution lately adopted. I can see no impropriety if the legislature adopts this day and time as an amendment to Mr. Mozeley's bill. There is, nor can there be, any politics in the matter. The convention (democratic), which meets next week, I have no doubt, will present the names of such gentlemen for judges of the supreme court who, by their legal ability and other qualifications, will find no opposition to their election. If our friends, the enemy, should present candidates not in accord with democratic principles, which I see no pribability of, then the candidates named will have to rely upon personal friends or interested parties to turn out and vote for them on the third Wednesday in December, If the election of justices of the peace for each militia district is held the same day and at the same places, there will be a local influence brought to bear in December. If the election of the peace for each militia district is held the peace for each militia district is held the same day and at the same playes, there will be a local influence brought to bear will be compilment.

will be a local influence brought to bear in the election which will be complimentary to the enemies of the party.

If one will think for a moment he will be satisfied that the day Mr. Mozeley proposes for election of justices of the peace, to-wit. December 26—the day after Christmas day, to say the least, is a very inappropriate one to hold an election. And should the amendment suggested in this communication be had, to have the election at the time and places for the election of judges of the supreme court, the tion at the time and places for the election of judges of the supreme court, the people will be relieved of one election at least, and the state and counties will be saved the expense necessary thereto.

Trusting that you will call the attention of the general assembly to this matter in order to adopt what will be to the best interests of all the people, I am yours

ITALY'S TOMB SPIDER. One of the Queer Insects of the Peninsula.

From The Pall Mall Gazette. The people of Italy believe in the exist-ence of a wonderful creature, which, for the want of a better name, is called the tomb spider. The entomologists know noth ing of this queer beast, and declare that if nly exists in the fancy of the superstitio persons and those whose curiosity or business makes it necessary for them to explore old ruins, tombs, catacombs, etc. According to the popular account the tomb spider is of a pure white color, has wings like those of a bat, a dozen horried crooklegs and a body three or four times the size of the largest tropical Amreican tarantula

The accounts of this queer insect and his out-of-the-way places of abode are by no means common, and on that account the information concerning him which we will means common, and on that account the information concerning him which we will be able to give the "curious" is very meager. Any Italian will tell you that such a creature exists, however, and that he is occasionally met within old mines and caverns, as well as in tombs and subterranean ruins. The London Saturday Review has an article from a correspondent who was present when some Roman workmen unearthed a church of the fifth century. He says: "We were standing by one of the heavy piliars that had originally supported the root, when something flashed down from the pitchy darkness overhead and paused full in the candle light beside us, at about a level with our eyes. It was as distinctly visible as a thing could be at a distance of three feet, and appeared to be an insect about half the size of a man's fist, white as wax and with its many long legs gathered in a bunch as it crouched on the stone.

"Our guide had seen, or at least heard of this uncanny insect of ill omen before, but was by no means reconciled to its presence, as his actions proved. He glanced around uncomfortably for a moment, and then moved away, we following. It seems really a bit queer, but it said that the strongest nerves give way in the presence of this insect of such ghostly mien. Even today this uncanny apparition is said to be an unclassified monster—an eternal mystery. When he grave spider is encountered by those opening tombs and vaults it is thought to be a sign' of death to one of the workmen or some member of his family."

MILLAIS'S SUCCESSOR

Something About the New President of the Royal Academy.

From The New York Advertiser.

A cablegram from London brings the news that Edward J. Poynter has been elected president of the Royal academy. The contest for the place of Millais has been a hot one. Poynter's rivals were all known in the art and literary men well known in the art and literary men well known in the strongest claim on the honor, but his age was against him. Some of the others mentioned were Val Prinsep, Orchardson, Alma Tadema and the American, Sargent, It required no ordi-American, Sargent. It required no ordi-nary care to decide which of these artists most nearly fulfill the complex requirements of the office.

The president of the Royal academy is virtually the head of the art world in the queen's realm, and the position requires a many-sided man. He must not only be an artist of unquestionable attainments, but a man of the world and of business, possessed of that, free from narrowness, and able to manage successully an institu-tion of extremely close and conservative

As an artist Mr. Poynter holds a very high rank. His name stands with the most authoritative in the Royal academy. He is essentially an erudite painter. His art is markedly grave and learned rather than spontaneous, and from the first works he exhibited to the last we may trace an uninterrupted sequence of purpose and achievement. Their themes are all intellectual, starting with "The Egyptian Sentinel and the Siren," with which he made his nel and the Siren," with which he made his first appearance on the walls of the academy in 1864, to the "Israel in Egypt," "The Catapuit," "The Prodigad Son," "The Golden Age," "A Visit to Aesculapius," now at South Kensington, and "The Visit of the Queen of Sheba." All his works reflect wide knowledge and scientific training.

The facts in the life of the new president are interesting. He is an instance of one of no inconsiderable number of typical English painters who have been born away from British soil. Poynton was born in Paris on March 20, 1835. He came of a family of artists. His father, Ambrose Poynter, was an architect, and he was the greatsrandson of Thomas Banks, a sculptor of the Royal academy. This inheritance of talent made itself felt in a great desire on the part of the young boy to be a painter. While still in his teens he went to Rome to study, and here he made the acquaintance of Frederick Leighton, then a young man. The two future presidents of the Royal academy worked together in the same studio, drawing from the same models and drapery—those that served Leighton for his first important picture of "Cimabue." In 1856 young Poynter went to Paris, and four years later settled finally in London. Then followed a long succession of pictures which won for him an election as an associate in 1868, and a free academician in 1876. In 1871 he was appointed Slade professor, and in 1876 director of art and principal of the training schools at South Kensington, appointments which he resigned in 1881 as interfering too seriously with his painting. NATIONAL GRANGE CONVENES. Thirty States Represented in the Convention.

Washington, November 11.-The thirteenth session of the national grange convened this morning in the National hotel, thirty states being represented by 150 delegates, It was the first meeting in Washington, a fact to which the several speakers referred in their remarks. General Secretary John Trimble, of this city, and William Saunders, superintendent of agricultural departmen der present at this meeting, welcomed the delegates to the national capitol. Saunders, in his speech, advocated the erec tion by the national grange of a hall of worthy Master J. W. Brigham, of Ohio

SOUTH CAROLINA AND GEORGIA. Annual Meeting of Stockholders at

Charleston Yesterday. Charleston, S. C., November 11.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the South Carolina and Georgia railroad was held in the general offices of the company in this city today. All of the old members of the board of directors were re-elected and Mr. Jefferson Hogan was elected a new member of the board. Over 45,000 shares of stock were represented at the meeting. During the afternoon the road entertained the directors, many of the stockholders and representatives of the Johnson Blue Cross line of steamers, which is shortly to be es-tablished between this city and Liverpool, on an excursion around the haroor and down to the jettles.

Railway Notes. The sale of the Little Rock and Memphi road has been postponed until March 17th.

The sale of the Ohio Southern, which was tet for November 7th, has been postponed until November 21st.

Theodore Brown, representing the B Four, is in the city. General Manager Whitcomb, of the Wis-consin Central, has issued a circular direct-ing that reports be made to the general freight agent and general passenger agent. It would seem from this that he does not in-tend to appoint any one for the present va-cancy caused by the resignation of Traffic Manager Wellington, who went on the board of administration of the new Western Freight Association.

The South Georgia railway will soon graded into Quitman. The Quitman F Press says that owners of real estate asking from 25 to 50 per cent more for prery than they asked a year ago and this on the strength of the raod's encompletion.

Two new western appointments have just been made by General Traffic Manager McCullough, of the Northwestern, effective November 15th. Robert R. Ritchle, formerly Omaha representative of the road, will be general agent for the Pacific coast, with headquarters in San Francisco, and John

Governor-elect Pingree, of Michigan, whose specialty is denunciation of existing rates of transportation, offers this prescription to the railway companies: "If the railroads would cut off their free passes, do away with their lobbyists in the legislature, discharge their high-priced attorneys, discarge their high-priced attorneys, discard their thousand-mile tickets, and permit all persons to ride at the rate of 2 cents per mile they would earn more money and be in better favor with the public, from whom they derive their support."

It is believed that in the near future all roads in the Central Passenger Committee running east from Chicago and St. Louis will adopt the plan of selling interchangeable mileage. A strong fight has been made to avoid making such a concession to the public, but the agreement not to sell interchangeable tickets is already falling to pieces. The Big Four, the Baltimore and Ohio, Southwestern and the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton have flung their interchangeable banner to the breeze and more will follow.

An underground railway in Paris, about 11.054 feet long, is to be built to transfer the terminal station of the Champagnie d'Orleans from the Place Valhubert, some distance up the Seine, to the Quai d'Orsay, opposite the gardens of the Tuilleries and in the heart of Paris. The new line will follow the left bank of the Seine, and will be, for the greater part, in a double track masonry tunnel, with the floors just above the level of the water in the river. About 2,027 feet near the preaent station will be a sunken track, open above. The total estimated cost is about $4,600,000.

The Wabash has recently built at its Toledo shops two postal cars which embody some new features. The cars have no end platforms, but are built with a solid vestibule, with chafing plates, which act with the regular vestibules to prevent telescoping in case of accidents. Gould automatic couplers and buffers are used, together with Westinghouse automatic quick-action airbrakes, and train signal. The brake cylinders are fourteen inches in diameter and the brakes are applied to all the wheels.
The trucks are of the Wabash standard sixwheel type, with thirty-three-inch cast iron wheels, weighing 600 pounds each. Inside the cars are equipped with Harrison racks, sixty-eight paper and 510 letter boxes, and are lighted by Pintsch gas.

Banner McKinley Town Celebrates.

From The Lewiston Evening Journal.

The little plantation of Seboeis came out Tuesday with twenty-one McKinley votes out of twenty-one ballots cast.

On the evening of November 4th the enthusiastic voters collected a large pile of combustible material on the highest pinnacle of the "Ridge," and satuating the whole with oil, set fire to it. Soon every house was filuminated and the banging of windesters was heard from almost every door obesters was heard from almost every door chesters was heard from almost every door.

As they had no cannon, they drilled and charged several granite boulders, and these charged several granite boulders, and these proved a good substitute.

Several of the boys, after securing old wash boilers, tin horns, etc., marched through the town, cheering for McKinley.
The fact that there were no Bryanites to see the celebration did not check the erthusiasm, and thy went home voting if the best time they had had for a good while.

What makes this celebration even more interesting is the fact that the returns from the September election showed a vote of 20 for Powers and 1 for Frank. Evidently the last democrat in progressive Seboeis has been converted.

The object of Admiral Bunce's new order declared to be without any significance in the foreign affairs of the United States out relates altogether to the necessities o effective naval administration. The great fleet which has been concentrated in home waters since last spring, ostensibly for the advantage of evolution and drill in squadron formation, but confessedly as a pre-cautionary measure against unforsee contingencies of possible development out of the Cuban and other complications in which the administration was more or less involved, cannot be dispersed until those onditions have ceased to exist, nor is it possible to maintain the ships idle in navy yards with the attendant expense for repairs always numerous during long stays in

Admiral Bunce, as well as all naval officers, has continually urged the necessity of keeping up the drills at sea, but these require a base of operations free from ice, easy of access, in which the whole fleet can anchor without crowding and where coal is cheap and good food abundant. The gulf of Mexico offers the most admirable theater for such winter operations, but the authorities have agreed that on account of its nearness to Cuba the presence of so large a force in the gulf would certainly be misinterpreted at Madrid.

When it was finally conceded that the fleet must be held together and that evolu-tions must be had, the only waters when the ships could be always in ready call for hurried return to this coast if needed was found in that part of the Atlantic near the mouth of the Orinoco and at the entranc of the Carribean sea well away from Ha-According to present understanding the

LIND WILL DEMAND A RECOUNT Fusionists Claim There Was Fraud in Minnesota Election.

Minneapolis, Minn., November 11.-It was announced today that the friends of John Lind, fusion candidate for governor will demand a recount. Clough's majority is now about $,000. The basis of the de mand is alleged frauds in the northwestern part of the state and the fact that a large number of ballots were erroneously market for both the Bryan and Palmer electors and were thrown out, when they should have been counted as the rest of the ticket These ballots, it is said, were almost if not entirely all for Lind. In this (Henne pin) county alone some 500 of these ballots were discarded. The democratic state committee is invastigating the matter.

The supreme court of Tennessee today de cided the general assignment law passed by the legislature in 1835 to be unconstitutheless, cuts quite a figure in several big assignments recently made in the state. The case on trial was the Third National bank et al. versus the Divine Grocery of trust filed by the Divine Grocery Company and involved the constitutionality of the general assignment act of 1895. If the act was valid certain preferences were given that were not lawful. The act was declared to be unconstitutional and of no effect. The deeds were held not invalid and the decree of the court of chancery appears reversed and the bill dismissed

NEW YORK GRAIN DEALERS FAIL Caused Considerable Surprise as the

Firm Did a Large Business. New York, November 11.-Clapp & Co., dealers in stocks and grain, have failed. Last night the firm made an assignment to William T. Davis, Jr. The failure occasioned some surprise, as the firm has been credited with doing a very large busines during the last five years of its existence in this city. The firm are members of the New York produce and cotton exchanges and of the Chicago board of trade. They were formerly members of the Consolidated exchange, but resigned with the idea of becoming members of the New York cotton exchange. The latter failed to act favorably on the firm's application for membership. The firm had extensive fices in the Mills building and a small army of clerks. No particulars concerning the failure were vouchsafed at the offices of the Woman Who Enlisted as a Soldier Wants a Pension. Columbus, O., November 11 .- (Special.)-Adjutant General Axline received a letter from a woman today asking for her military record in the civil war. Examination of the war records of the office discovered her name on the rolls of a company of a regiment that saw much service as a common soldier. "Mrs." was prefixed to her name, showing that she was enlisted as a woman. General Axline refused to give her name for the reason that the records showed her to have deserted, and he thought this might be an error that could be cleared up. She is now married and the head of a family. She says she wants the record to use in an application for a pension. She was with the regiment eighteen months in 1862 and 1863.

Sayre Succeeds Pettus as President of the Senate. NUMBER OF BILLS WERE INTRODUCED

There Were Many Important Recommendations Contained in Oates's Message-What Was Done.

Montgomery, Ala., November 11.-(Special.)-Both houses of the general assembly met in regular session at 10 o'clock this morning. After prayer and the calling of the roll in the house, the election of a speaker was proceeded with. The first ballot resulted: N. N. Clements, democrat, 69; A. P. Longshore, populist, 20: J. C. Abercrombie, republican, 4.

Colonel Clements was declared to be the speaker of the house. He was escorted to he chair, and delivered an eloquent and patriotic speech of acceptance. Mr. Massie Wilson, of Clark, was unaninously re-elected clerk of the house.

Mr Jesse Adams of Dale was elected assistant clerk over King, populist, and Tuckle, republican. Mr. Val Taylor, of Perry, was unanimonsly re-elected engrossing clerk, and Mr. W. P. Howell, of Cherokee, was elected enrolling clerk over his populist and republican competitors.

Messrs. Robert Hasson and J. T. Fain were elected doorkeeper and assistant doorkeeper, respectively. A message from the senate requesting that s joint committee be appointed to wait upon the governor was received, and a committee was appointed. To this committee Governor Oates gave his blennial message. It nous document of some 25,000 words, and deals with every detail of the state government. Among other things Governor Oates recommends that the Sayre election law be abolished; that the county convict system be abolished and that cerain changes be made in the state convict system; that building and loan asso be required to pay taxes on all of their assets; that laws looking to the assessment of all of the property in the state be enacted, the fault in the present tax system laving in the assessment rather than in the eld every four years, and that officers be neligible to re-election; that the legislathan the time now required; that su-preme court judges be elected for ten years; that solicitors be paid fees rather than salaries; that no politica conventions be allowed to be held in the capitol, that a state historian be appointed on a salary of $1,200; that the south end of the capitol square be purchased and a governor's manon be erected on it; that, in addition to a state examiner, an examiner be appointe charge for a commission under seal instead of $1; that a tax be laid expressly for the mairtenance of the public schools; that larger appropriations be made for the State University and for the Girls' Industria school; that the military be ence

d company in each rigiment. There are numerous other suggestion nendations, but those referred to are among the most important. The house eceived a message and each member was furnished with a printed copy of it.

The Senate. President Pettuc called the senate to order and Rev. Mr. Ott, of Lauderdale, pronounc-Senator Pettus nominated Senator Sayre, of Montgomery, democrat, for president, and Senator Hollis nominated Senator

Deans, of Shelby, ropulist. The ballot resulted, Sayre 22, Davis 8. President Sayre was then introduced, addressed the senate briefly and the oath of office was administered by Chief Justice

Mr. John Proctor, of Jackson, was then Calhoun, assistant secretary; Mrs. Guessnerr, of Montgomery, enrolling and en-gressing clerk; ex-Senator Kemp, dooreeper and Mr. Wotens, of Perry, assistant The following bills were then introduced.

Of the public by sustaining practical and honorable methods. The average span of life allotted to specialists who advertise their services is from one to two years, and with the average case, newspaper advertising only serves to bring out the imperfections of the advertiser. The people have been so often disappointed that they have inclined to suspect bad faith on the part of the advertiser. This rule, however, does not apply to Dr. Hathaway & Co. Old residents who observe the patients daily going to the office of these specialists, recall the fact that they saw the same thing six years ago. It is thoroughly understood that the doctors have adopted skillful and honorable methods for the treatment of the sick; that they fulfill all their promises, and that they find it easy to sustain a reputation made years ago. This explains why public confidence in Dr. Hathaway & Co. seems permanent and unchangeable, while others flourish bravely for a little while and are then seen no more. That these physicians are highly successful is seen by the fact of the many cures perfected of aliments which in many cases were pronounced incurable by reputable physicians. In many instances through gratitude for the physicians and a desire to aid their fellow sufferers, these cured patients publicly recommend these expert specialists.

Spears had his hand injured in a cotton gin some time ago, and has since refused to work about a gin. Mr. Parnell told him to go to the gin and go to work, and the negro grew angry and attacked him with an ax, knocking him down and burying the blade in his back. The negro then made his escape, and has not been captured. At last accounts Mr. Parnell was in an unconsclous and critical condition

Ten of the leading companies paid the license promptly. For three days there have been a score or more of special agents of the other ferry companies in the city viewing the situation, and as a result a number of companies have signed an agreement to beycott the city, provided the companies which have already paid the license can be induced to join the movement. In this the insurance men claim they will succed, and that every company will withdraw from the city and will cancel outstanding policies unless the old license rates are

The Senatorial Election.

One of the arguments employed last week to dispose of the protest against the cost and confusion of a new election in Georgia at this time was that if Governor Atkinson should be promptly nominated by the caucus, he would at once resign, thereby giving the people of the state a whole week in which to consider the gubernatorial vacancy and the succession, and allowing them to select delegates to a gubernatorial convention next Saturday. the day on which the delegates to the supreme court convention are to be

The Constitution showed at the time, and before the balloting for senator began, that the argument was absurd on the face of it: that the people would not have sufficient time in which to arrange for the gubernatorial succession: that the selection of delegates on the day set apart for choosing delegates to the supreme court convention would be to violate the intentions of the legislature, which took the supreme court matter out of current and partisan politics and set it apart: and that the effort to dispose of the gubernatorial succession in such a manner would involve undue haste and add to the resentment which the people would surely feel at having to settle over again a question which they have just settled.

But the caucus did not nominate a senator last Monday, nor did it select one Tuesday. The afternoon, with the possibility that the or two. But in the event that the legislative caucus does not select a senator kinson, and he should resign immediately, it would be impossible for the selection of delegates to a gubernatorial convention to take place concurrently with the delegates to the supreme court convention, for that primary is fixed for Saturday, the 14th, and will take place

Thus, in order to avoid the cost of a new election, should Governor Atkinson be chosen, he would have to resign one day and the delegates to nominate his successor chosen in all the counties of the state the next day. The idea is both preposterous and impossible. The democratic state convention to nominate supreme court justices will be held November 18th-next Wednesday. The election of the justices will take place December 18th. As the gubernatorial election cannot be held in less than thirty days, it would be impossible for the election for Governor Atkinson's successor to take place on the day set apart for the selection of supreme court justices. Even if it were possible, the election of a governor concurrently with the election of supereme court judges would be a gross violation of the spirit of the supreme court amendment.

So that, after all is said, the legislature will have to fall back on the naked question whether any man's claims to the senatorial toga-whether any man's services to the party, already highly rewarded-demand the infliction of another campaign and election on the people at a heavy cost in money and a much heavier cost to the people and the party, which will have to face not only the | means that the entire fleet is defective opposition that grows out of the present situation, but the resentment of thousands of voters who will resent an

These are matters that the members of the legislature will have to settle without regard to persons or prejudices. It is certain that there is something builders. Instead of awarding the conowing to the party by every man it has tract to some responsible firm the govever honored even in the smallest de- ernment undertook to do its own work. gree. The debt is not all on one side. It is not easy for every man to place his duty to his party above personal be a most extravagant waste of governfice is hardly worth organizing and sup-

The Constitution is willing to subscribe to pretty much everything the warmest friends claim for Governor Atkinson except this, that his claims on the party are more important than the welfare of the party. We do not know that such a contention has been openly made, but it is to be inferred from the attitude of those who have been doing all they could to create a vacancy in the governor's office and thus precipitate upon the party an unnecessary and doubtful campaign upon the taxpayers of the state the cost of an unnecessary election, and what they, as democrats, must consider as of a great deal more importance—to place upon the democratic leaders, the democratic workers and the democratic mases in each county, the burden of an unneccessary election. It is impossible that the party could have gone so deeply in debt to any man. Is there no reciprocity in such matters? When a party highly honors a man, has it no claim on his consideration? Must it be put to an unusual and unnatural strain to reward him still more highly?

These considerations each democratic member of the general assembly must weigh and decide for himself. He must decide, in accordance with what he feels to be his duty to his party, whether it is sound policy to force an unnecessary campaign and election on the people at this time. He must decide whether it is wise to unnecessarily impose on the taxpayers the cost of an election; and he must settle for himself whether such a course would be the best thing that could happen to the party, whether it would strengthen and unite the organization, or tend to weaken it.

These are all practical questions, and each member of the legislature will have to bear his due share of the responsibility. It is too late now to say that a vacancy in the governor's office can be filled by holding a snap convention next Wednesday and a snap election on the 18th of December. It can't be done. The legislature will have to face the situation as it is.

Hon. Henry T. Lewis.

The announcement made by Hon. Henry T. Lewis that he has withdrawn from the centest for the United States senatorship was the especially interesting development of yesterday in political circles.

earnest request of his friends, consented to the use of his name, and has from the first conducted his campaign on the highest possible plane, so it is he ritires from the contest. His determination to withdraw is made at the time when many of his closest friends believed that he was in an excellent position to secure the senatorial nomination: but as he explains to the friends who have voted so loyally for him, that his candidacy tends to intensify the strained condition of affairs, and to remove that tendency and in the interest of a speedy solution, he decides to withdraw.

His canvass has been conducted on the same high plane upon which all the acts adjournment until this (Thursday) one of Georgia's ablest and noblest sons. An Ideal Cabinet. One of the leading newspapers of the country suggests the following cabinet officers for the next administration:

Secretary of State-Grover Cleveland. Secretary of the Treasury-John G. Car-Secretary of War—Daniel Lamont, Secretary of the Navy.-H. A. Herbert, Attorney General—Richard Olney.

Postmaster General-W. C. Wilson Secretary of the Interior-D. R. Francis. Secretary of Agriculture-S. P. Morton. So far as the views of the foregoing officeholders on the money question are concerned, they are strictly in accord with the republican policy of finance. They have, furthermore, conspired to wreck the democratic party and to increase the hold of the money power upon the nation. With such able records in this respect there is no reason why the present cabinet should not be retained under the next administration. The Sinking of the Texas.

The New York Journal regards the sinking of the battleship Texas at the wharf in the Brooklyn navy yard as a satire on the vaunted strength of our American naval fleet.

Whether this stricture is exactly fair or not is open to very grave dispute. It cannot be denied, however, that the sinking of the battleship Texas is, in some degree at least, humiliating to our naval pride. The affair will doubtless be regarded as a huge joke by the European powers who will enjoy a good laugh at our expense.

Because of this mishap, however, which only one vessel in the navy has sustained it does not follow by any Such an inference is at once challenged by the splendid record which our navy has already made, as well as by the careful test to which the several battle-ships have been subjected.

The trouble with the battleship Texas is that it was built in the Norfolk navy yard and not by a firm of reliable ship-As it turned out, the plan was not a good one. It was inspired by false instead of prudent economy and proved to siderations, but a party that is not ment money. Before it was finally comworth so small and insignificant a sacri- | pleted, some fourteen months ago, the total cost of construction had rea that time numerous repairs have been made on the machinery of the vessel, and now comes the crowning disaster in the statement that the vessel has gone down in the Brooklyn navy yard. To extricate the ship from the deep mud in which it is fastened will cost the government a round sum of money The heaviest item of expense, however, will be in repairing the machinery of the vessel. Before the unfortunate disaster is retrieved, the government will doubtless be ready to abandon the trade of shipbuilding.

The Latest Phase of Civil Service Reform.

There is one aspect of Clevelandism that is causing the most pronounced mugwumps to feel as if they had taken an overdose of jalap, and even the idolatrous News and Courier, of Charleston, is inclined to wretch and gag.

The trouble lies in the rule which the Cleveland administration has lately established with respect to subordinate officials. In every case where an official of less importance than the head of a department has engaged in an effort to promote the free coinage of silver, or has betrayed any enthusiasm in maintaining his allegiance to the democratic party, his head has fallen into the bas-

We referred to this matter yesterday nd reproduced the manly letter of Judge W. B. Fleming, of Kentucky, who had been at the head of a bureau in the treasury department, and who has been removed for advocating the election of Mr. Bryan. The Springfield Republican makes this comment:

Such a case as this becomes chiefly through the exercise of the rights denied to subordinates by the public officials above them. It is impos-sible—it must be frankly admitted—to draw a line in political activity between the head of a department and the subor dinate head of a bureau or the ordinary government employe. If it is proper for Mr. Carlisle or Comptroller Eckels Mr. Carlisle or Comptroller Eckels or Assistant Secretary Hamlin to go upon the stump, as in the last campaign it cannot well be improper for Judg Fleming or Postmaster Ridgeley, of Illinois, to do the same. That the one may advocate what we may conceive to be a good political or partisan cause, an the other what we may believe to be a bad cause, can make no difference Points of view change with individuals, and to set up so variable a standard of judgment is to let down every bar which Mr. Cleveland has sought to raise against partisan activity on the part of federal office holders.

So with The Charleston News and Courier, which says that "it is not easy to understand why conduct which is regarded as a duty on the part of heads of departments should be regarded as criminal on the part of their subordinates."

While all this is true, it is also true that both of our contemporaries have missed the real essence of the matter. It is this: That while subordinate officials have been applauded, leaves of absence granted them and their expenses paid to oppose the election of Bryan, officials of the same rank and grade have been summarily removed for exercising the right of free speech in favoring the election of the democratic candidate. Even allowing that there are class and caste distinctions among officials, and that heads of departments have political rights which their subordinates have been compelled to surrender, it must be conceded that one set of officials should have no such privilege from officials of the same rank and grade. Yet the fact remains that officials who were active democrats have been removed and those who were active for the republicans

But Mr. Cleveland will care nothing for the criticisms of his mugwump supthese, possibly, will give him content-

The Treasury Portfolio.

Inview of the issues of the campaign just ended, the chief interest of the cabinet makers centers on the treasury portfolio. A good many of the prophets are slating Cornelius N. Bliss, of New York, for that important position, and the announcements to this effect have taken on a semi-official air.

Without making a personal fight on the able treasurer of the republican campaign committee, The Washington Post enters a vigorous protest against any cabinet which will place the treas ury department of the government un der the control of New York. The Post, however, does not restrict its opposition to the great metropolis alone, but includes the entire stretch of country east of the Alleghany mountains.

The stand which The Washington Post takes in this matter is not grounded upon political reasons. It has no reference whatever to the question of policy and is based solely upon the idea that the treasury department should be as far removed as possible from the influnce and control of the money power. Says The Post, in defining its attitude:

The mere fact that New York's interest in the government of the nation refers exclusively to the treasury department is not a valid and convincing reason why New York should be given conson why New York should be given control of that department. Quite the contrary. As we see the matter it should be an unanswerable reason for giving the portfolio to a western man. There is something indecent in the undisguised eagerness of New York on this point. Either the average New Yorker thinks that no one outside of Manhattan island is canable of administering the nettoric is capable of administering the nation's finances, or he holds that New York should have place for the local profit there is in it. Take which alternative you may prefer, the argument against New York is conclusive. The treasury should be administered for the benefit of the whole country—not for that of Wall street—and the control of that department of the government should be confided to some one who realizes the existence of a territory and a population west of the Hudson river.

of the Hudson river.

Nothing here said or suggested is to be construed as challenging Mr. Bliss's personal capacity. That he is a successful man of affairs, upright, conscientious, and patriotic, we do not for a moment doubt. Our contention is that no eastern man, least of all a New Yorker, should be made secretary of the treasury. The great bulk of the population of this country, its most potent forces of enterprise and progress, its truest patriotism and its deepest devotion to American principles and institutions, are to be found in the west. New York's supremacy in financial matters is a plece of unof the Hudson river. acy in financial matters is a piece of un-acy in financial matters is a piece of un-adulterated insolence. Its claim on any other ground is a subject for contempt-nous ridicule. The country wants its treasury operated for the benefit of the United States. The country is tired and ashamed of having its policy dictated and shaped in London. There are numbers of capable financiers in the west who think the United States good enough for them, and who will not care whether the Rothschilds approve or disapprove their course.

The language of the foregoing editorial is vigorous and to the point, while the spirit which it breathes is purely American. Although The Post was not in line with the advocates of bimetallism in the late campaign it cordially agrees with them in the declaration that the money power should not control our legislation and that American finance should be independent of British manip-

The Venezuelan Question. After a long interval of diplomatic cor

espondence it is now evident that a muual understanding between this country and Great Britain, with respect to the Venezuelan question, has been reached. Several months ago Lord Salisbury was uncompromisingly opposed to arbi tration. His pronounced attitude was, of course, due in a partial sense to the conviction that Great Britain was right n her demand, but in a more important measure to the feeling of national resistance aroused by the sharp tone of Mr. Cleveland's pronunciamento. In the meantime wiser counsels have prevailed in both countries, and indications now point to a solution of this vexed ques

The speech of Lord Salisbury in London last Monday evening on the occasion of the new lord mayor's installation not only gives proof of the radical change of mind which the British cabinet has undergone, but also makes it evident that the object of Sir Julian Pouncefort's visit to this country is to officially notify the government of England's acquiescence in the plan of arbitration.

In espousing the cause of Venezuela this country merely planted itself upon the Monroe doctrine without taking the pains at that time to investigate the facts upon which the claim was based. Subsequent disclosures, however, have confirmed the position taken by the South American republic and fustified this country in assuming her cause. The Venezuelan commission, which is now in session, has prosecuted its labors far enough to make it evident that Venezuela is right in her contentions and that England is claiming territory which does not belong to her.

If the question is submitted to arbitration, the result will be a complete vindication of the claim which Venezuela has set up, as well as a triumph for the Monroe doctrine.

Seriously, now, does Editor Pulitzer or Editor Godkin know what Mr. McKinley's financial policy is?

Mr. Hanna says he won the farmers and laborers of the west by explaining that Mr. McKinley stood for "bimetallism and an international agreement.' This seems to us to be a direct attack on The New York Evening Post.

Suppose Mr. McKinley takes the republican platform seriously and begins as soon as he takes his seat, won't the eastern organs be properly angry?

The Macon Telegraph wants to know what is to become of those democrats who were "insulted and fired out last July." Oh, they are safe enough. They fired themselves into the republican party, and that is the ideal place for those who believe in the gold standard.

The latest rumor is that Mr. Hanna will become secretary of the treasury, The rumor is belated. The general impression has been that it was decided long ago that Hanna was to have that position.

Butler Herald: Reiterate our firm belief, that if this country is to continue free and its people enjoy prosperity and happiness there must be a return to democratic principle and practice. The advocates of the single gold standard have never yet made a prediction as to the results of its policy which has ever been realized. That policy will now have four years of uninterrupted sway, and if it is capable of the good results which its advocates claim for it, they will certainly at least begin to appear. Walton News: If McKinley can bring the boasted "prosperity" which they have said would follow republican success, let it come. The country stands in need of a large measure of it. At any rate, the people for four years can turn their attention to business and for a while let politics alone.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

As a military leader General Weyler is a prodigious failure, notwithstanding the number of his reported victories it has at last commenced to dawn upon the home government that he is wholly incompetent Except as a butcher the Spanish corer has no claim to distinction. Sp of General Weyler The Boston Advertis says:

"It seems to be the general opinion in Spain that before many months have pass ed, or perhaps before this year ends, General Weyler will be recalled by the Madrid government from Cuba, and will return to Spain in disgrace. The Spanish general there is good proof that he has entered into some understanding with the Spanish republicans. The latter are quite proud of the compuct, and some of the republican ournals even hint that if Weyler is recall-Spain. This threat is not so formidable as the Spanish republicans seem to consider it, for in spite of its bad success in the mat-ter of the Cuban revolution, the Madrid government seems to be strong enough in Spain to crush any insurrection there.

One of the most remarkable men in this country is Dr. James R. Cocke, of Boston, Mass. Although deprived of sight from his birth he is, nevertheless, a successful surgeon and an expert on the color and textare of tobacco. Says The United States

Tobacco Journal: "It was when he was a boy of twelve, living with a rich uncle at Knoxville, Tenn. that he learned to distinguish the color and texture of tobacco by his exquisite sense of touch. The rich uncle, meeting with financial reverses and being rich no longer, young Cocke came to New York and offer-ed his services to a large tobacco firm as a buyer of tobacco. The members of the firm were astonished that a blind boy should seek such a position, but being put to the test he proved his efficiency, and was engaged. He was sent to Havana to buy tobacco, and gave great satisfaction to his employers.

The Philadelphia Times, in speaking of the newly-elected president, observes that Mr. McKinley is the only private soldier who has been elected to the presidency, or seriously thought of for that position. The only other man who served as a private in the ranks of the army who has been prominently discussed as a presidential candidate was William R. Morrison, of Illinois.
McKinley enlisted as a private in the ranks of the Twenty-third Ohio regiment, of which General Rosecrans was colonel, R. B. Hayes, who afterwards became president, and Stanley Matthews, who died as judge of the supreme court of the United States, were field officers. McKinley rose to the rank of captain during the war, and retired with the brevet of major for spe cial gallantry at Fisher's Hill and Cedar Creek. It is an eloquent commentary on the beneficence of the greatest of free governments that a private soldier in the ranks of the army can win his way to the highest civil trust of the world, and by the largest majority ever given to a pres-idential candidate."

FREE COINAGE NOT DEFEATED McKinley's Administration Will Pave

the Way to Success in 1900.
From The Denver Republican.
It must be evident to every intelligent observer that the battle for free colnage is already virtually won.

If Bryan had been overwhelmingly beaten there might be doubt as to the effect of the result in the public mind; but with the result in the public mind; but with the country almost equally divided between the two candidates, and the certainty that many who favor the restoration of silver to its old place and value in our currency voted for McKinley, not because they favored the single gold standard, but because they honestly though mistakenly believed that the coinage problem, like many others, could best be solved by the republican party, it must be clear that a large majority of the American people are unequivocally in favor of bimetailism.

The logic of the situation, re-enforced by the financial plank of the St. Louis platform, will compel McKinley to make an honest effort early in his administration to secure international concert of action for

If not impossible, for his administration to avoid the only alternative of independent free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 by our government.

The educational effects of the campaign which has just closed must not be coked. Millions of voters who never anything about the money question anything about the money question have been taught by the great speeches of Bryan and other bimetallists that there is a very intimate and necessary relation between the volume of money available for circulation and the prosperity of the country, and by that new knowledge they will test and measure the incoming administration.

More bond issues to maintain a gold reserve, especially if accompanied by such business depression as has marked President Cleveland's experiment with the single gold sandard, would, almost certainly insure the election of a free coinage congress in 1898, and of a free coinage president and congress in 1900.

The republican party cannot afford to face another national campaign as the champion of a money-reducing policy. Evchampion of a money-reducing policy. Every state which has made a study of the money question in the past went for Bryan and free coinage, with Colorado, the best informed of all, at the head of the list, and this election, although most of them had never given any serious thought to the money question until after the Chicago con-vention, will stand together for the future, and the missionary work they will acco plish in the next four years for the candi-date and the cause they supported so en-thusiastically will surely give them a majority in four out of every five states in the union long before the next presidential election comes around.

SOME GEORGIA NOTES.

The cotton fields of Gwinnett county look as bare as they usually do the middle of December. The people are gleaning out the last locks from the dry stalks. One of the best posted cotton men of the county esti-mates that Gwinnett has made more cotton than for yars. He calculates it this way: First, there was more planted, and then it was all gathered—none wasted, as usual by storms—and the last bolt will open. While the price has been low, everybody has got the top of the market. And Lawrenceville has held her own as one of the best markets in north Georgia.

A handle factory and general wood working plant will be removed from New York state to Trenton within the next few veeks, probably, even now the machinery is being loaded upon the cars. That Trenton has secured this plant is due to the ef forts of Professor Welch, who has pre-pared and had printed a pamphlet on the resources of Dade county.

There is truth in the rumor that Harmo ny Grove is going to try to move the coun-ty line of Banks so as to include Maysville the pleasure of living in a democratic county. Not only is she going to do this, but she is going to have the county site changed from Homer to that place. An excontroversy is the result In the year 1834 Captain A. S. Allen, then s

RURAL SCENES IN GEORGIA.

Gwinnett Herald: There is a prominent farmer who lives within a radius of three miles from The Herald office who was seen a few weeks ago going up the road on foot at a two-forty-gate, in fact he was "cutting the gravel," and right behind him was a Georgia bull yearling running at full speed and bleating at every jump. The farmer was running for dear life—he was like Porter's coom—and finally succeeded in climbing a tree. The yearling stopped at the foot of the tree and in a moment fell over dead. Whether the yearling run itself to death after its master or whether it died from hydrophobla is still an unsolved problem.

THAT CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION. Two Views of What the Republican Victory Means.

Mark Hanna in The New York Evening

Mark Hanna in The New York Evening Post.

"We put in so much work in the middle west because there especially the farmers and laborers in cities had been misinformed in regard to our position. Many of them had the idea that the republican party stood for gold monometallism; that if Mc-Kinley were elected sAver would disappear as currency. We explained to them that we stood on the St. Louis platform, which advocates bimetallism urder an international agreement, and that we were not gold monometallists. The result of our campaign of education is shown in the vote all through the west."

New York Evening Post Editorial:

It was a square fight between the single silver standard and the single gold standard. Any politician who now goes to fooling with the delusion of international bimetallism will be held, and rightly, to be proposing to go through the agony all over again, and will be apt to have his own portion of the agony served out to him in advance.

The session was made necessary by the provisions of law and at least one ballot must be taken each day at noon until a senator is elected. There was an interested crowd of spectators in the galleries when the joint session began and the visitors remained during the roll call of the senate and house. The populist members of the assembly cast their votes for the nominee. William read by Clerk Grice and approved. Mr. Bowden, of Habersham, offered resolution authorizing the governor to pass an order relinquishing all claims of the state on the property of the Blue Ridge and Atlantic Railroad Company. The resolu-tion sets forth that the railroad company has complied with the provision of an act of 1895, having put its roadbed in good con-dition and resumed its schedules, and is therefore entitled to be released from its obligation to the state.

Mr. Bowden asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution, but Mr. Boynton, of Spalding, objected and the resolution was referred to the committee on railroads. the bill was then unanimously adopted, on motion of Mr. Felder, of Fulton, the author. First Election Contest Fight On. At this point in the house proceedings the first pitched battle of the session between the democrats and populists was witnessed. The trouble came about over an election contest from Clay county and the dispute

It seems that the committee on elections agreed to introduce in the house a resolution authorizing the appointment of a com-mittee of three members to go to Clay coun-ty and recount the ballots cast in the elecolution was offered by the acting chairman

Intosh, there was strenuous objections to it. Kennetworth Charges Fraud. A. L. Foster, populist, is the sitting member, the record sent from Clay county showing that he received a majority of only three votes. The seat is being contested by W. P. Kennelworth, democrat, who charges that fraud was committed and that he was counted out.

The committee investigated the case, but was unable to reach a decision as to the merits of the case. It was decided to send a committee to Clay county to count the ballots, giving all interested parties one day's notice, the count to be made in the office of the clerk of the superior court of Clay county. A resolution providing for that method of procedure was, therefore, offered, and but for the interruption of the session by the appearance of the senate at noon to ballot for senator the resolution would have been adopted. Mr. Branch Opposes It. Mr. Branch, populist, of Columbia county, leader of his party in the house, objected to the consideration of the resolution and he wanted it referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

Mr. Mansfield, of McIntosh, and Mr. Slaton, of Fulton, stated that the resolution had been before the committee. Mr. Slaton said that the officer of Clay county whose duty it was to send the evidence in the case to the house had falled to do so and that it was neces-sary to go to Clay after the evidence. Mr. Mansfield took a hand in the discus sion. He declared that he wanted a committee to go to Clay county and "get in the ballot box and see who did the stealing."

Mansfield Causes an Uproar. Mr. Mansfield's friends say he is some what enthusiastic when a party question is raised and he proved the truth of his reputation when he crossed the house to where Mr. Branch was speaking and lean-ing almost against the member from Columbia, said he was ready to answer que tions. The house was in an uproar at the scene, and Speaker Jenkins declared his disapproval of such methods of colloquy between members.

Mr. Mansfield then returned to his seat and Mr. Branch was allowed to proceed.

He sald: "Mr. Speaker, I do not stand here to ob-ject to the adoption of this resolution. I simply desire that the resolution be referred

FELDER'S BILL IS DELAYED

Fulton School Proposition Not Allowed To Pass the Senate Before Going to a Committee.

The senate was in session only a short while yesterday. After introducing a few bills, a recess was taken until 12 o'clock, when the two houses met in joint session to take a joint ballot for United States senator. The senators voted as on yesterday, scattering honors around promiscuously. The vote of the senators will be found

An important measure was introduced at yesterday's session of the senate by Senator Turner. The bill is an act to amend large the power of exemption from taxation all places of religious worship or burial, and also all property belonging to colleges, incorporated seminaries and other places of learning.

It will require a two-thirds vote of the general assembly to pass the bill, as it is to alter the state constitution, and will have to be submitted to the people at the next gubernatorial election.

The bill provides that all property of any church, religious society or sect be exempted from taxation, and also exempts the property of any college, incorporated academy, or other seminary of learning; the real and personal property of any public library and that of any other used by or and personal property of any public in-brary and that of any other used by or connected with such library; all books and philosophical apparatus; all paintings and statuary of any company or association kept in a public hall and not held or sold as merchandise, provided such property is not used for private property or income. Property of churches, colleges, etc., are exempted from taxation by the present law to a certain extent. Mr. Turner's bill seeks to further exempt such property.

The Fulton School Bill. The bill of Mr. Felder, establishing a system of public schools in Fulton county, which had been read for the second time in which had been read for the second time in the senate, came up for a third reading and a vote on its passage. Mr. Battle, of the twenty-fourth, objected to a third reading of the bill before it went before the proper committee. It had been engrossed by motion of Senator Blalock. The twenty-fourth's senator made a speech in which he said no bill should pass the senate with he said no bill should pass the senate without that body clearly understanding its meaning, and as Mr. Felder's bill would cause an election in Fulton county, he thought it ought to be referred to the com-mittee on county and county matters. He moved that this action be taken, and the serate voted that the bill be taken out of engrossment and referred to the committee on county and county matters. This will defer the passage of the bill for several days. It was passed unanimously by the house, and the senate will likewise pass it without any dissenting votes. A bill was introduced by Senator Mann, of the second district, that authorizes the collection of taxes on property which has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

The bill provides as follows:
"That, from and after the passage of the act, it shall be lawful to force the collection of taxes due by individuals or corporations to the state, county and municipal corpor-ations, notwithstanding that the property of said individuals or corporations may have been placed in the hands of a receiver

the finance committee—A bill to make appropriations for the maintainence of the executive, legislative and fudicial and other departments of the state government. It is a blanker bill and was referred to the finance committee.

By Mr. Bowden, of Habersham—A bill to amend section, 377 of the code of 1882.

TO TAKE OFF TAXES of said corporations by an order or decree of any court by a levy and sale of the property in the possession of the receiver by the same officers, and in the same manner as if the property remained in the possession of the individual or corporation owning said property."

Senate Bill Secks To Further Exempt

To Establish a State Dental College. Senator Hudson, of the thirteenth district, introduced a bill to establish a board of dental examiners in the state to consist of five qualified practitioners; to define the duties and powers of this board, and to regulate the practice of dentistry in the state.

The measure is similar to that intro-duced last week by Senator Dunwody, who introduced a bill prepared by the Georgia Dental Association. There are a few pro-visions in Senator Hudson's bill that are visions in Senator Hudson's bill that are not contained in Senator Dunwody's. Both bills will be referred to the general judiciary committee, and that committee will accept the one they think best, or reject both.

The dentists of the state are determined to get some measure through the legislature that will keep out unqualified practitioners. If the board is created, it shall be its duty to examine all applicants and pass upon their merits. An almost identical bill was introduced at the last session, but the legislature adjourned before it was reached.

pearance. The next process was to place the bill between two papers, the one cov-ering the front being glazed with glycerine, and the one covering the back with parafine. They were then 'worked' by rolling in the hands. The holes were punched through to give them the appearance of having been sent through in express money packages. This point deceives many ex-perienced people, who think that money must be good if handled and shipped by an express company-an entirely errone

"All this was explained to me by my quondam friends. After enjoying their hospitality and talking over our former adventure, I left them for the time." Made a Narrow Escape.

In another chapter, Dice tells of an ex citing escape, as follows:
"As my friends had promised, they visited my camps in force, and I entertained them in genuine cowboy style. My cattle were nearly ready for shipment, and the prospect of a cheap ride to Chicago, in consequence, seemed to take a fast hold on my visitors. I did not object.

"During the interval of delay they decided to combine business with pleasure and to improve the shining hour like the to be 'turned' in my vicinity, so they proceeded to practice another branch of their

"They went over to the banks of th Brazos, on the pretense of a fishing ex-cursion, but in reality their trip was for the purpose of giving a teabath to a few copies of Bland's silver bill, or to baptize Uncle Tom Hendricks—several of him. After doing this in the approved manner before described, they hung up the 'rags' on the ground to dry ..

"At this time along came a 'south-eastwest' wind, and when it subsided, the rags lay like dead leaves, scattered all around, some up the trees, some under logs and some among the 'cotton fields and corn. Others kept rolling on. After gathering them up, like 'shells from the seashore' or flowers from the wildwood, their owners in fact, they were 'out' some six or eight ten-spot silver certificates. So when the sun went down it found them not on a still hunt, but still hunting for fly-away 'queers;' but the darkness came and they were compelled to give up the search.
"The next morning an old-time plantation darky came along and found what he supposed to be a new ten-dollar bank note. proceeded to tell all his neighbors good fortune, which, however, proved his misfortune; so other cotton pickers quit their fields of labor and went to seek fortunes on the banks of the Brazos. Shortly afterwards there was another bill found and the excitement grew stronger. The farm hands came from far and near. In in the fields at any price. They actually left crops in need of attention and went looking for greenbacks among the green trees. You would hear an old-time slave trees. say: 'Go 'long, white man, I can't work for you today. I'se gwine down on de ribber to fin' sum ob dat money wot dey all am talkin' 'bout. Dat Efrm Johnsing ies ole man Smith foun' one. I knows uv, and dere's hull lot uv dem niggars dat am findin' 'em an' doan' say nuffin 'bout hit.' Well, at the close of the second day, all eight of the 'rags' were accounted for, and 'poor white trash' had joined in the search for ten-dollar notes. Even the owners of the land became interested and wanted to

"However, when Deacon Smith, who ound the first bill, sent it up to Houston o exchange for a wholesale supply of benzine,' tobacco, cigars and the other ecessaries of life, you can imagine the others, who had been so fortunate (?) as to find the much looked for 'queer,' when instead of the goods and good things or red, the bill came back. pack of secret service hounds on its trail, and such a 'coon-hunting' time was never known before in Texan history. His Trip to Atlanta. Dice tells of his visit to Atlanta fust before he was captured as follows:

"At least, finding things dull in my line I decided to take advantage of the cheap rates and take a trip to Atlanta, Ga. where the Cotton States and Internationa

Exposition was in progress. "I left Kansas City on a Saturday night, and taking a through sleeper, arrived at my destination on the Monday following. I stopped at the Oriental hotel, visited the exposition daily, making the Hammond Dressed Beef Company's exhibit my head

"After a few days' solourn, who did After a few days sojourn, who did I find on the scene but 'Queer Jim.' He was in great trouble, A couple of 'shovers' had been 'p.nched.' He had the same old 'swag' with him, and was in doubt how best to protect himself.

"I preferred not to take a hand in the game, but he was in great distress, so I at last told told him to send around the bag and I would get someone to attend to it for him. Here is where I made the mistake of my life, for I could have taken the bag alons with me and no one would have been the "It was, however, sent around to its destination by a 'brother in black,' and afterward Jim had a few words with me in the Kimball house.

"I then learned that by accommodating him I had 'put my foot in it.' I was in-formed that Fitzgerald, the Chicago 'flycop,' and the whole of the secret service were hot after me. I said: 'Well, I am here, let them come and get me.' I de-cided, however, to look them up first and to see what manner of men such noted detectives could be.

"I had no trouble in locating my marks, and joined in with them. I soon found that they really wanted me, and so, after con-sideration, I decided to return to Kansas City, where I was well known, so that in case there was any charge against me I would be at home, where I could have the assistance of my friends if necessary.

His Trial and Sentence. The remaining chapter of the book deal with the trial and conviction. The incidents are told in the characteristic style of

In conclusion Dice gives a letter written to his father immediately after conviction. It is interesting in that it shows up the character of the famous criminal. The letter is as follows:
"Atlanta—Dear Father: It's all over with Atlanta—Dear Father: It's all over with me now and I got a good hard fall.

"Now this is what I get for trying to be 'too funny.' It is a little more than I expected, but it might have been worse.

"I will have to let it go at that, and if I cannot be good, I will be just as good as I can, and thus get some time off my sentence. In that event I will only have to stay about five years. That will not be a long time rolling round, and besides, I will get a good long rest: have a nice.

a long time rolling round, and besides, I will set a good long rest; have a nice, clean home, plenty to eat and to wear and nothing to trouble my mind.

"Just think of the many advantages that a good man can enjoy at one of Uncle Sam's deadhead hotels, where they have first-class accommodations for the care of those who do not comply with the rules and regulations of the government, as written in Uncle's big book—otherwise known as the 'Revised Statutes.' nown as the 'Revised Statutes.'
"I always look on the bright side of everything, and when there is no sun or moonshine for light, I have depended on (electric) lightning bugs for 'bright sparks of hope,' when camped on the lone prairie on a dark, cloudy night.

"If every one could take the world as it comes and look upon the dark side of life as caimly as I do, there would not be as many suicides and broken hearts in this ungrateful world.

"Well, I guess I was too good on the outside, and Uncle Sam wanted to see if I could be good on the inside.

"I was 'getting a little bit gay,' anyway. I was going on a fast gait, in fact I got 'way.

was going on a fast gait, in fact I got 'way ahead of time, and now I am side-tracked was going on a fast gait, in fact I got 'way ahead of time, and now I am side-tracked for repairs, so when I come out I will be just ten years younger than when I went to 'store,' for you must remember that I have been to mill a great many times, and always got my grist—if not I most.

"Well, I will take my 'bit' like a man, for they can't bluff me, if I am 'broke' and 1,000 miles from home. I am the same old.

"You will always know where I am now for the next five or six years to come and you will not have to send out any postal card tracers, with my photograph on, to make inquiries as to my whereabouts; and when you want to come and see me you will always find me at the 'Hotel-de-Columbus,' attending strictly to business, as I will not have anything else to attend to.

"You know that I am not guilty of any intended wrong, and if I can forget my punishment and bear it, you surely can forgive and overlook my misfortune. "With best wishes to all, I am, as over, GEORGE W. DICE.

LECTURES ON MORMONISM.

Mrs. John L. Bartow Will Deliver Her Address This Evening. Mrs. John L. Bartow, formerly Miss Florence Long, will lecture tonight on the subject of "Modern Mormonism" at the Young Men's Christian Association hall. The lecure will be given under the auspices of the woman's club of Atlanta. Mrs. Bartow handles her subject in an exceedingly clever manner and has delighted her audiences wherever the lecture has been given. She is thoroughly posted on the subject and gives the question in detail, but with wit and pathos intermingled. Whether considered from the standpoint of critical judgment, delicate humor, keen bservation, incident or anecdote, the lecture is a pronounced success.

Lincoln, Neb., November 11.—One night a week before the election Mr. Bryan had a peculiar dream, which he related at the table the next morning.

"I dreamed," he sa d, "that the election was over and that Mr. McKiniey had received 34,000,000 votes, while I had received only 30,000,000."

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper ef-forts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts— rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual dis-ease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, prompt-ly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all representations. Suit for $10,000 damages was yesterda lled against the Southern railway by Glen nled against the Southern railway by Glennak Rountree, who represent R. A. Glass, formerly an employe of the road.

The large amount of damages and the extraordinary ofrcumstances of the alleged accident and the disastrous results of the injuries received make the case of more than ordinary interest.

Glass claims that he was employed by the Southern railway as a messenger boy.

the Southern railway as a messenger boy, and that his duties were to notify the fire-men and engineers when a train was to leave the city. He says he worked at night, going on duty at 5 o'clock in the after and working until the same hour the morning.

On the night of October 19, 1894, Glass says he was instructed to wake up the engineer and fireman for a train that was to leave the city at 9 o'clock that night. He says he started on his errand, but first went after his lantern, which was across the yard from the office of the yardmaster in the roundhouse. As he walked down be-tween the tracks he says he stepped upon a greasy piece of waste that had been care-lessly thrown on the ground by an employe of the company.

Glass says he slipped upon the ofly substance and was thrown into an engine pit, which was very deep. He says he fell upon an iron bolt, badly wrenching himself and receiving such dangerous injuries that he became insane and was tried before the ordinary upone writted. dinary upon a writ of lunacy. He says he was sent to the asylum, where he remained three months when he was discharged. In his petition Glass charges the road with negligence on account of the waste being left between the tracks. He says a barrel had been placed in the yard for the purpose of keeping waste from congregat-ing about the place and the act of the com-pany amounts to liability. Road Wins the Case. The days of horse cars were recalled esterday, when the damage case filed by harles McHenry against the Atlanta Street

The defense claimed that the acts of the driver were not the acts of the company, as the negro had been arrested after he left the car. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the street car company. McHenry was represented by Mr. Burton Smith, while Mr. Thad Hammond represented the street car company comedies, and has never had a failure.

It is doubtful if any theatrical attraction has as strong a hold upon theatergoing people as the comedies by Charles Hoyt. It may be because Mr. Hoyt, being an American himself, knows just what the American public wants in the way of amusement, Be that as it may, it is safe to predict that his latest and greatest success, "A Milk White Flag," will be royally received, and this will not be strange, as it will be the first presentation of this popular playright's masterpiece in this city.

It will be given identically the same in every detail as presented at Hoyt's theater, New York, for more than 200 nights. The cast is a big one, numbering about fifty people, and some forty supernumeraries, all required for the proper presentation of the piece. The scenery is heralded as being the most elaborate ever seen in this section.

THEY SPRING A LEGAL POINT

State Board Listens to Arguments and Then Postpones Further Action Until Next Week,

The state railroad commission had from full of lawyers and witnesses present Yesterday morning when it began business. Captain D. G. Purse, of Savannah, and two or three complaints which had brought most of the lawyers there. He asked to have certain changes made in fertilizer rates. The representatives of the roads objected. Mr. Culp, traffic manager of the Southern, argued that the rates were all right, and that the roads could not stand a reduction. The rates have been reduced 10 per cent, he said, within the last few years. Some discussion arose over the profit in through business done by railroads. Captain Purse stated that the roads do a great deal of through business at a less. Mr. Culp said that the reads do not haul freight for less than the cost unless a mistake is made in billing or in som exceptional case. He claimed that railroads often take a through shipment of freight at a figure which would be a loss if that were the only shipment going to the sam destination or in the same direction. But as the trains have to be operated any way, the traffic can be handled at a profit even at low figures, sometimes.

No decision was rendered in this case.

An order was granted allowing a change in the classification of cotton seed meal.

Hereafter it will be charged the same rate that wheat bran pays. The cotton seed oil men claim that if they can get a lower rate on the meal for a time they will be able to introduce the meal much nore widely as food for cattle. The cotton seed meal comes in competition with bran, and therefore the change in classification was granted, the roads agreeing.

In the afternoon the cut rate cotton cases were called. Captain Purse, as chairman of the Savannah freight bureau, was represented by Colonel W. C. Glenn, Major Joseph Cumming appeared for the Georgia road, Judge John I. Hall for the Georgia Southern and Florida, and Major Joe La-mar, of Augusta, for certain exporters.

poenas calling on the Georgia and other ratiroads and some research The railroad commission had issued subrailroads and some private firms to pre-sent their books in which the records The roads and the firms protested against showing their books. They said that the subpoena duces tecum, if the board had authority to issue any kind of a subpoena n the case which they had up. The roads demied that the commission had any right o go into the cut rate cases, and fought that proposition, which was supported by Colonel Glenn. The constitution of the Inited States, of Georgia, the revised statpites, the Georgia code, acts of the legisla-ture and decisions of divers courts were quoted for and against the proposition.

One of the main points in contention was whether the commission had any right to investigate the methods pursued by railreads in handling interstate traffic. It was admitted that they might investigate state commerce, but the roads denied the right to look into laterstate transactions.

This point was argued at length.

Colonel Glenn argued that the word subpoena used in the act of 1890 was generic and was meant to cover all many subpoenas. To admit that the commission was authorized to investigate cases of discrimination and then to deny to it ower of pursuing the necessary and legal nethods of making the investigation would place them in the position of Tantalus. The water would come up to their necks, but they would not be able to drink. After a full argument on the question the board continued the hearing next week.

Consulting Judge Clements. Judge J. C. Clements, of the International Commerce Commission, will remain here until tonight. Yesterday he had a number of calls from persons who wished to consult him about railroad matters. The complaints from Griffin and LaGrange, in which he heard evidence on Monday and Tuesday, will be argued at some future date before the full board at Washington.

In corn the shipping demand has been rather poor and there has been a lack of support in a speculative way. Receipts were light owing to the bad country roads. The heavy receipts of hogs—40,000—caused rather a weak feeling in provisions. The market was narrow and void of interest.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying Against Puts Prevents a More

Serious Decline.

Chicago, November 11.—The tone of the wheat market today was a varied one. The tendency of prices was to decline and at the end of the session almost 2c loss from the final quotations of yesterday was noted. Liverpool held the key to the situation and as the course of affairs at that place was unsatisfactory to holders, selling became very popular. The first cables were somewhat mixed, but it was gleaned from their general tenor that there was hesitation in the advance on the other side of the water. Second advices were even more emphatic, a decline of 1½d being reported. The puts offered the only formidable opposition to the decline here, and it was solely to the buying against these privileges that today's break stopped where it did. December wheat opened from 80¼673½c, sold between 80%c and 78%c, closing at 79c—1%c under vesterday. Cash wheat was easy and 2c lower.

s0%c and 78%c, closing at 79c—1%c under vesterday. Cash wheat was easy and 2c lower.

Corn—It was easy to suppose how corn would act with wheat weak and there existing no encouragement in the position of the market itself. Prices slipped away with much determination, although there was some selling by the bears. Commission houses had orders on that side, and the only buyers were shorts. May corn opened from 29½ to 29½c, declining to 29c, closing at the inside—%@%c under yesterday. Cash corn was weak and ½@½c perbushel lower.

Oats received their share of weakness from the toppy condition of wheat. The feeling in the market was not in the least independent, and trading was moderate. May oats closed ½@%c under yesterday. Cash oats were steady, owing to the scantiness of the supply.

Cash oats were steady, owing to the scantiness of the supply.

Provisions reflected the tone of the hog and grain markets. Only a slow, listless trade was noted, and price changes were narrow. At the close January pork and lard were each 2½@5c lower and January ribs unchanged.

Paine-Murphy Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Atlanta. November 11.—Lower Liverpool cables, together with heavy selling for Liverpool account, depressed the New York market today. The sales for Liverpool account were estimated at about 50,000 bales. New York operators and the south also sold. There was a rally at one time in which part of the loss was recovered on predictions of freezing weather tomorrow in most parts of the south, but still later prices weakened again on renewed selling and closed quiet and stealy at a net decline of 8 to 9 points with sales of 212,700 bales. It was reported that Neill Bros. will issue a crop estimate tomorrow giving the yield at 9,100,000 to 9,250,000 bales. We still advocate purchases on the declines for quick turns. Liverpool was unchanged on spot with sales of 12,000 bales. Futures declined 4½ to 6 points, closing barely steady. In New Orleans January declined 6 points. In Manchester yarns and cloths were quiet but steady. Port receipts 41,424 bales, against 44,305 last week. 32,100 last year and 55,073 in 1894. Thus far this week 178,757, against 40,305 last week. Exports 61,923. Augusta received today 2,403, against 2,763 and 1,083; Memphis 2,711, against 4,086 and 3,131; Houston 4,699, against 3,624 last week and 7,341 last year. Memphis shipped today 1,330, St. Louis 5,017 and Houston 7,376. Houston receipts tomorrow are estimated at 6,500 to 7,500, against 10,403 and 5,572; New Paine-Murphy Co.'s Cotton Letter. 1,330, St. Louis 5,017 and Houston 7,376. Houston receipts tomorrow are estimated at 6,500 to 7,500, against 10,403 and 5,572; New Orleans expects 13,000 to 14,000, against 15,941 and 9,242. Spot in New York declined 1-16c with sales of 69 for spinning; middling 8½c, against 8½c last year. Mobile declined 1-16c, Savannah, Baltimore and Augusta declined ½c. New Orleans sold 6,000, Augusta 1,500, Norfolk 707. Savannah 406, St. Louis 2,55 and Mobile 396. The following is the range of cotton futures in New York yesterday:

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, November 11.—(Special.)—Cotton was lower today. The movement was comparatively light and the exports were heavy, but a stream of foreign selling orders poured in, which was more than the market could stand. The German houses were again conspicuous and heavy sellers. Some said the reason of the selling was a new crop estimate by Neill of 9,200,000 bales. January opened at 8.02, rallied to 8.04, declined to 7.94, and after again rallying to 7.99, closed at 7.95@7.96, with the tone quiet and steady. We have not changed our opinion that the conditions warrant higher prices for cotton, and we believe that the influence of these conditions will make itself felt before the end of the year. But as to the immediate future we fear that nothing but a big drop, in the receipts are received. the immediate future we fear that as to the immediate future we fear that nothing but a big drop in the receipts can prevent a further decline. The market is still top-heavy, and if liquidation should once begin in earnest we may see a greater slump than is now anticipated. The buying power seemed weak today, and a repetition of today's selling would probably result in a break.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, November 11.—The markets today have been under the influence of a rumor-that on Thursday or Friday of this week Mr. Neill would issue a crop estimate of 9,250,000 bales. This is the expected estimate to which we referred yesterday.
It is, indeed, remarkable that Mr. Neill's estimate of the crop should have any influence after the severe losses of last season by his estimates, which were so wrong.
Nevertheless, the rumor has brought large orders from Liverpool and the continent to sell in anticipation of a further decline, when this estimate shall have been officially promulgated. The semi-weekly movement at the interior towns is less than last year, and the total coming into sight this week is expected to slowly approach the movement of last season. Under ordinary circumstances the facts are developing in favor of, rather than against, cotton. Another cold wave of freezing temperature has been predicted for the cotton belt. In seasons when a large crop of cotton had been produced frost has been delayed to a much later period. The market closed quet under the influence of the expected estimate from Mr. Neill, though it is not confirmed by the movement. It is expected that less than 340,000 bales will appear in sight this week. Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter. Following are the closing bids:

The Sun's Cotton Review.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, November II.—Cotton here decline 1-16c. Liverpool was unchanged on the spot with sales of 12,000 bales. Futures there declined 4½ to 6 points, closing barely steady. Port receipts were 41,424 bales. Futures here declined 8 to 9 points, closing quiet and steady with sales of 212,700 bales.

The trading today was less active and was composed in the main of selling by weak longs. Prices declined under the pressure of liquidation for local, Liverpool and southern account, closing at about the lowest figures of the day. There was a trifling rally at one time on predictions of freezing weather in eastern Taxas, Arkansas, Alabami. Tennesses. Missispip and Louislana, but price some weather and heavy selling orders were received from that market, the Liverpool sales here being estimated at about 50,000 bales. It was reported that Neill Bros. will issue a bearish circular tomorrow increasing their estimate to 9,250,000 bales. The sentiment here is still buillish, but the weight of cotton at the ports and interior towns, is too much for the present volume of speculation. The semi-weekly receipts at thirteen principal towns were 78,382 bales, against 50,000 a week ago, 80,000 last year

The Dry Goods Market. New York, November II.—Taken altogether the day's results in the dry goods market are fairly encouraging. The sales of woolen goods for men's wear are somewhat larger and of fair volume in worsted and woolen goods. The general tone is good, and prices were well maintained throughout.

Securities Were Less Active, Closing Lower.

New York, November 11.—The security markets were less active today, the sales of stocks footing up 316,905 shares, and for rallway and miscellaneous bonds $2,414,000.

As compared with previous days of the week, both totals show a falling off. The tendency of prices was downward, but the decline was stubbornly contested throughout. As of late, the selling was mainly for professionals who are working for a reac-tion, although here and there in the list sales to realize profits were noted. In view of the advance of late, these sales excite little or no comments. At the start lower cables from London and the poor showing of St. Paul for the first week in November had an adverse influence. Prices broke 34 per cent for Manhattan to 1004, and the general market ran off 1/4@15% per cent, Sugar being most prominent. The break in Manhattan was due to the disappointment felt in certain quarters over the annual election. It was expected that the new board would contain at least one representative of a leading life insurance company, but this proving not to be the recent buyers turned sellers. Toward midnight the market assumed a firmer tone and commission houses reported an increase in outside orders, the result of the successful negotiation of the Venezuelan arbitration treaty. As the day wore along the bears became more aggressive and an unfounded rumor of the death of Cornelius gar, the Grangers, Louisville and Nashville, Western Union, Tennessee Coal, Southern Railway preferred and Northern Pacific preferred were especially weak. Considering the efforts put forth, the decline in prices was unimportant. The fact of the natter is that the feeling is decidedly con matter is that the feeling is decidedly confident as to the future and stocks are finding ready buyers at each concession. Confidence was stimulated by the declaration of the usual dividend by the Burlington and Quincy, the action of the Bituminous Coal carriers of the Ohio valley in forming a traffic association for three years, the increasing ease in money and the successful placing of the New York city loan. These bonds were awarded on a basis which returns an annual income of 3.2 per cent. Already sales have been made to private investors at an advance. In the late dealings sugar declined to 121. The company at the opening of business announced an advance of 1/8c in refined sugar, but later a reduction of equal proportions was made. Manhattan, after breaking to 100%, railled to 102% and receded to 100% [010]. Speculation closed weak. Net changes show losses of 1/20 per cent outside of Manhattan, which fell 2½ higher. Tobacco was in demand and rose to 82% on an unfounded report of a settlement of the rate war with the Western Plug manufacturers.

Bonds were weak in sympathy with the stock market. Sales footed un $2.414.000 fident as to the future and stocks are find furnish it, and foreign bids were considerably out of line with our price today. This had a depressing effect on our market, causing liberal selling both by holders and scalpers. Cables reported a halt to the bullish feeling in Liverpool with a tendency among holders to take profits, believing the advance under sufficient for the time being. That marret was very irregular, opening 34d higher, declined rather sharply and finally closed 34d lower than yesterday for futures and steady for spot. Home news, however, was strong. Receipts both at Chicago and in the northwest were very light and the cash market exceedingly firm. No. 2 red winter in St. Louis on track sold at the May price, and the relative market there was 10c over the December price. Millers as far south as Tennessee were bidding for wheat and the sample tables were well cleaned up. These factors undoubtedly would have caused a strong speculative market had it not been for the foreign news. Then, again, 80c looks rather high for wheat as compared with a few weeks ago, and traders do not feel inclined to follow the market too high just now, preferring to buy on a break rather than on such a large advance. Cash sales here amounted to about 100,000 bushels. Northwest receipts will likely be light for some time to come, owing first to the bad roads and latter to the demand to fill country warehouses.

How Weyler's Announcement Was Received by the Cuban Junta.

CAUSED SOME COMMOTION

But Prominent Members of the Junta Say the Spanish General Cannot Carry Out His Plans.

New York, November 11 .- Not since the filibustering ship Hawkins foundered off Barnegat with General Calixto Garcia and a number of Cuban revolutionists on board has there been such activity at headquar-ters of the Cuban junta in this city as was noticeable yesterday. The announcement that Weyler was about to take the field, massing an army of 200,000 men on the island and end the insurrection by one fierce onslaught of war, has stirred up the Cuban patriots of this city and inquiry for details is being made of the members of the junta. The Cubans here do not express any also may a to the surrous but they do any alarm as to the outcome, but they do think that President Cleveland should recognize the insurgents as belligerents and by that act prevent the repetition of Spanish barbarity, which follows every engagement in which the Spanish troops ob-tain any advantage. It is said that the junta tain any advantage. It is said that the junta will again petition President Cleveland to take action in regard to the matter.

Senor Casillo, one of the most prominent members of the junta, said yesterday: "President Cleveland ought to accept the belligerent resolutions of congress as the expression of the people of this country and the strength of the people of the second of the people of t and act on them. From this time until the summer months, if the war lasts that long, the revolution will be vigorously prosecuted and as both Cubans and Spaniards are deperate battles of the war will occur within the next few weeks. The insurgents have now three dynamite guns, which have already done effective work, and with these and the large quantity of arms and ammu-nition which they are receiving by every expedition, they are in better condition than at any time heretofore. The report that Spain will make a determined effort to defeat the insurgents does not frighten us, for we have heard such stories be-fore, and so far as the 200,000 soldiers are concerned, I am sure that Spain cannot in her present condition support such a large army. But," added Senor Castillo, "the insurgents are well armed and in good health and will continue the fight, regardless of any action taken by the Spaniards.

Senor Trujillo, another patriot, is con-stantly receiving information from all parts of the island. Speaking of the barbarities practiced by the Spanish troops, he said today: "Many stories of Spanish atrocities have recently come from Clenfuegos, Cuba, but of all those perpetrated by the Spanish guerillas in this district on non-combatants, the killing several days ago of Henry d'Abigeon, a wealthy French Canadian sugar planter, is probably the most ruthless of the outrages charged to these men. The victim of this latest outrage was an English subject, and the facts in the case sul George Fowler, who has begun an investigation. Thus far the Spanish soldiers have been careful not to molest citizens of England, and the death of d'Abigeon is the first which the representative of Great Britain has been compelled to act upon, and the general feeling in Cienfuegos is that Consul Fowler will demand either an in-demnity or at least an apology, and if this is nominated it is likely that there will be considerable trouble. D'Abigeon was visited at his summer home at Rodas by four Spanish guerillas from Cartagena, another spanish guerilas from Cartagena, another bytown. The major of this band suspected d'Abigeon of aiding the insurgents and wanted the planter brought before him. When the four guerillas arrived at the house d'Abigeon was sick and refused to accompany them to Cartagena, whereupon without warning, and before the eyes of his wife, the four emptied their rifles into the unfortunate man's body, who died instantly.'

Neither Senor Trujillo nor Senor Castillo could say what, if any, action the junta proposed taking, although from the ac-tivity noticeable at headquarters, the inference is drawn that reinforcements are likely to be sent to the Cubans from this

DISSOLUTION

It proceeds with interest and impetus undiminished. The thrill of trade is powerful. Not a jot of abatement in the buying vigor. Yesterday the rush was so continuous and impetuous that many visitors could not be served. This occurred in spite of the fact that we have increased our salesforce to meet the exigencies of this special event. Every minute of the day the aisles were choked, congested, bubbling with crowds of impatient buyers. Those who were disappointed in being waited upon had better come today-early.

The character of the response to our announcement is gratifying; the volume of business consummated has been enormous; the mutual satisfaction immense. Shows that honest advertising is convincing. Appreciation is pleasant. We thank you.

Cheaper Than Western Corn. From The Covington Star.

Mr. John Hight has raised a large crop of corn this year and says it has cost him only 8 cents per bushel. He has kept a strict account of every expense incurred in the cultivation rop and finds the cost to be exactly 8 cents per bushel. That beats raising cotton at 7 cents ound and buying western corn at 50 cents

There is no excuse for buying western orn even if it costs 16 or 20 cents a bushel to raise it here. But at 8 cents a bushel, no price of cotton would justify raising it to buy western corn.

Dunlap-Fain.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred yesterday morning at the Methodist church. The bride was Miss Caroline Fain and the groom was Mr. Edgar Dunlap, both of this city. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms and roses and presented a very attractive appearance. The eremony was performed by Rev. I. S. Hopkins in a very solemn and impressive

The bridal procession left the residence of the bride's parents, 79 Forest avenue, about 10:30 o'clock and arrived at the church promptly at 11 o'clock. The groom came to the altar by the side door accompanied by his best man, Mr. Mark McCord, while the bride came in at the middle alsle with her maid of honor, Miss Nellie Fain, and met him at the railing.

The attendants were: Miss Nellie Fain, maid of honor; Misses Bessie Dunham, of Savannah; Sarah Croswell, Wilmington, N. C.; Margaret Dunlap, Gainesville; Minni Dunlap, Gainesville; Florence Green, May Prior and Hattie Zettler. Messrs. Mark J. McCord, James T. Duniap, S. H. Malone, E. A. Northen, Joseph Duniap, W. J. Croswell, Jr., James E. Watkins and William Mann.

The attendants followed the bride and her maid of honor, the gentlemen coming in on the right and the ladies on the left. The bride carried in her hand a beautiful bunch of bride roses and her maid of honor held in her hand a large bunch of pure white chrysanthemums, the rest of the bridesmaids carried yellow chrysanthe-mums. After the railing had been reached the attendants formed a semi-circle around the bride and groom, the gentlemen being a little in the rear of their partners.

After the ceremony had been performed the bridal party was driven to the depot, where the bride and groom left on the noon train over the Southern road for many points of interest in the east. Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fain, the parents of the bride, entertained the bridal party at their home on Forrest avenue. An elegant menu was served and the evening was spent in a delightful manner by the young people.

Miss Caroline Fain is a very beautiful and popular lady. She is quite young, having been out of school only a short while ing been out of school only a short while, but during her short reign in society she has been a decided belle and has many friends who will miss her from their cir cle. Mr. Dunlap is a young man of ster-ling business qualities and is very popular with all who know him. He is a member of the firm of Hatcher & Dunlap and is well known in the city.

Three Weddings in Athens.

Athens, Ga., November 11.—(Special.)—Three marriages occurred here today.
At 6 o'clock this afternoon, at the First Methodist church, occurred the marriage of Mr. John White Morton, son of ex-State Senator W. J. As the bridal couple entered the church it was the universal femark that never had a handsomer couple stood before the marriage alter in classic Athens. At the alter the wedding ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner by Dr. Isaac S. Hopkins, of Atlanta, an uncle of the bride. Then came the reception tendered the bridal party by Captain and Mrs. Hinton, at their lovely home on "The Heights," where for several hours congratulations were showered upon the happy young couple by their hosts of admiring friends. Mr. and Mrs. Morton left at half-past 10 o'clock on the Seaboard Air-Line vestibule. They will spend several weeks north before re-turning to Athens, where they will in the future reside. Cain-Shy.

At half-past 8 o'clock this evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cain, on Oconee street, was the scene of a happy wedding. The occasion was the matriage of their beautiful and accomplicated young daughter, Lettle to Mr. Wesley S. Shy, a popular and progressive young merchant of this city. The marriage was a home affair at which only a few close friends were present. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. S. R. Mr. B. M. Hall, of this city, who is on of the best known civil and mining en gineers in the state, said to a representa tive of The Costitution yesterday:

"I was glad to see the article in Sun day's Constitution on Georgia gold mines, by Professor Yeates, giving a brief sketch of his bulletin, soon to be issued, on the subject. The people of Georgia have rea-son to be proud of the fact that we, at least, have a state geologist who is fully alive to the importance of this great ques-"As a mining engineer of long experience in the south Appalachian gold fields, I look forward to the coming bulletin with a great deal of interest. It will be a systematic general treatise on our differen gold formations, which cover a large area in the state; each belt having its own characteristics, and all of them presenting many interesting features. It will serve as a guide to the prospector, and of special interest to the mining engineer who is called to examine and report upon one or more mines in any locality.

"The most important subject before the scientific world today is the economical treatment of gold ores and where to look for new supplies. In our meetings of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, I notice that this question excites more discussion than any other and that an eager desire is shown to know more about the southern gold bearing formations. The bulletin referred to will, in a great measure, meet this demand for inwho is called to examine and report upon great measure, meet this demand for in-formation, and mark the beginning of a new era in this, our most important, source of wealth.

"Professor Yeates has also done a con-siderable amount of work in our marble, granite, corundum, water powers and other resources. The Georgia geological survey, under his mahagement, is a success and should be liberally supported by the state."

NEW CITY DIRECTORY FLED FROM HER HOME

Compiled New.

WILL SOON GO TO THE PRINTER

Canvassers Say the Population Has Materially Increased—New Book Will Be All Complete.

Atlanta's new city directory—the directory of 1897—will soon be printed.

The new directory will show an increase

The new directory will show an increase in the population of the city. It will contain a great many more names than the old directory, and will be as complete a guide to the city as has ever been issued.

It is stated by those who are getting out the new directory that it will be ready for publication within two or three weeks. The work of compilation has already advanced to a great degree, and nearly all of the names that will appear in the book have been secured by the canvassers who have worked the city over.

The new directory will be edited by Mr. V. V. Bullock, secretary of the chamber of commerce. For the past three months he has had a corps of canvassers going over the city collecting such names and addresses as should appear in the directory. The canvassers were about ten in number and they took the city by districts and put down all names and addresses on slips of paper and afterwards went over the territory and corrected the addresses. The down all names and addresses on slips of paper and afterwards went over the territory and corrected the addresses. The men are required to cover their territory several times so as to keep up with all changes of residence. The names they want are names of all males who have regular positions in the city, names of the heads of all families and names of ladies who fill positions. Names of persons under who fill positions. Names of persons under sixteen years old rarely appear in the di-

The canvassers who are getting up the names for the directory complain some of having trouble in securing names. Persons who wish to avoid paying street tax try and keep their names out of the directory. There are several thousand names that are missed by the canvassers just for the reason that their owners do not wish to be located by the city marshal. The canvassers in the boarding districts complain of much dodging. They say that it is almost impossible to get all the names at large boarding houses where the landlord has been instructed by the boarders to keep their

The new directory will be about the same size as the '96 directory. It will be bound the same and will be printed on about the same quality of paper.

Macon Man Wanted To Publish It. Mayor King has received a letter from Macon man who wanted to compile and have published the Atlanta directory of '97. The mayor wrote the man in the Central City that the city had nothing whatever to do with the compilation of the directory, and that it would be published by the secretary of the chamber of commerce, as usual.

The copies of the new directory will be put on sale a few days before the 1st of January. Copies will be delivered to all parts of the city for the necessary sum. Last year's directory was sold for $5. Mr. Bullock has several men actively at work compiling the directory. The city canvassers are going over their respective ter-ritories, noting all changes, etc., and the copy for the book will go to the printer next week or week after. The advertise-ments that will be scattered through the book are ready for print now.

COOL IN WEST, WARM IN EAST. The Forecaster Tells of Existing

Weather Conditions. The storm central last night in the upper lake region has disappeared to the north-eastward, but there seems to be another depression developing in the west gulf states, causing cloudy to threatening weather with some rain in the central and west gulf states The thermometer has fallen considerably in the Atlantic coast states, but risen generally elsewhere Fair weather prevails generally in the northwest, lake region, Ohio valley and along the Atlantic coast.

It has been warmer today to the eastward of a line drawn from Buffalo, N. Y., to Pennsacola, Fla., while to the west of this line it has been cooler, except in Wyoming and western Kansas, where it is warmer.

The cool area reached southward to central Texas, where it is 18 degrees colder. It is also colder 10 to 20 degrees in the states bordering on the Mississippi river, from western Tennessee northward to St. Paul.
The temperature is rising in the extreme northwest.

> SHE SUES FOR A DIVORCE Many Witnesses Testify in the Robinson Life Insurance Case-Hutchison Suit on Trial.

The divorce petition of Mrs. Mary E. Thomason, the wildow of the late Isaac Brown, the wife of George O. Thomason and the mother of two children, was yesterday filed in the superior court by At-torneys Piers & Smith and the case will be set for a hearing at the next term of the court before Judge Lumpkin.

Mrs. Thomason alleges in her petition that her second marriage has been that her second marriage in a great disappointment and claims she has been cruelly and inhumanly treated by her husband, inasmuch that she feared for her personal safety and was compelled to seek security and safety by leaving her home and going to the house of her neighbor. and going to the house of her husband, Isaac Brown, having died several years ago, leaving her two young children to care for.

The wife alleges that she has been a faithful, affectionate and dutiful helpmeet and has discharged her duties as best she could. She says she had been married only four months when she discovered that she had loved well, but not wisely. She says her husband began to abuse her, using vulgar and obscene language in her pres ence and in the presence of her children. He would come home in an intoxicated condition and conduct himself in a boistrous manner.

Mrs. Thomason says he made use of language that was vile and vulgar and on several occasions threatened her life and the lives of her children. She says that one time he threatened to burn her home. Mrs. Thomason says he abused both her and her children and his example was no that of a father which could be emulated by his children. On account of his con-duct and alleged abuse and cruel treatment the wife states that she could no longer live with him, and fearing that he would do her bodlly harm, fled to the hou a stranger in the neighborhood, where she yesterday.

John Robinson was known to almost everyone, and in his early days had been very popular among his friends. About two years ago he was carried to the city stockade to serve a short sentence that had been imposed in the recorder's court.

While at work one afternoon he was seized with sudden illness, and while he was heing corried in a wagon to the camp he being carried in a wagon to the eamp he died. At the time of his death he carried $5,000 life insurance in the Massachusett Benefit Life Association. The amount of this policy has never been paid, the con-tention of the company being that Robinon's statement in regard to his temperate habits was false and that the insurance was obtained by fraud. A large number of witnesses testified in the case yesterday. It was expected that the end would be reached, but the case will be taken up again this morning at 9 o'clock and a ver-dict will probably be reached today before the adjournment of court.

Hutchison Case on Trial. In the second division of the city court Judge Berry continued the hearing of testinony in the Hutchison damage suit against the Southern railway. Yesterday morning Harry Hutchison, the young boy who lost his leg by being knocked down and run over by an engine of the Southern and who is the plaintiff in the case, made his statement. On account of the number of witnesses and the length of their testimony it will require the re-mainder of the week for the trial of the

28 PEACHTREE STREET.

$2,250 buys new 8-room house, built this year, all modern conveniences, hard-oil finish, gas, hot and cold water, bathroom, stationary washstand, cabinet mantels, clubhouse grates, pantry; closets, etc. This house is constructed of the very best material, and good workmanship; was not built to speculate on, but for a home for the present owner; house and lot cost over $2,500 cash, and then the lot was bought remarkably cheap. This place is situated on the corner of Loyd street, in a section of the city that has been improved more this year than any other. Terms, one-half cash, balance reasonable. Owner compelled to leave city, hence the extraordinary offer. If you do not care to buy for a home, the place will net a good per centage on the investment, as the owner tells us he has refused repeated offers to rent the place at $25 per month. This offer only for a few days.
